WEATHER.
U. S. Dept. of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau.
Toledo, O., 8 a. m., Feb. 27, 1892.

The local forecast for to-day is fair, slight change in temperature.

For Sunday, warmer and cloudy.

The "high" area central over Lake Michigan yesterday has increased to 31.0 inches, and is now over New England.

A "low," or storm center developed yesterday in Wyoming, and is now central in Dakota. It will pass off through Lake Superior into Canada; it will create clouds and will assist to raise the temperature Sunday evening in this locality. The zero temperature in the upper lake region will steady Toledo's temperature until then.

From the appearance of this morning's map cloudy and warmer weather may be expected for several days, followed by colder weather, probably Tuesday.

The highest temperature this morning was 56 degrees at Galveston; the lowest was 4 above at Ft. Buford, Dak. The zero temperature line this morning extends along the north shores of Lakes Superior and Huron, thence eastward through New England.

The highest temperature in Toledo yesterday was 45 degrees; the lowest this morning was 24 degrees.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Forecast for Ohio—Brisk and high easterly winds; cloudy weather, with light snows on the lakes; warmer and fair Sunday.

For Indiana and Illinois—Warmer; southeasterly winds, and fair to-day; increasing cloudiness and much warmer Sunday, with possibly light rains in northern portions.

For Michigan and Wisconsin—Warmer, southeasterly winds and fair to-day; much warmer and cloudy weather, with possibly light rains or snows Sunday.

WILLIAM ALARMED

The Emperor of Germany is Badly Scared,

And Visions of Dynamite Floated Past Him

As He Viewed the Formation of the Mob.

Did it Signify a Revolution for Bread?

Extraordinary Precaution Taken by the Militia to Put Down the Uprising Which Assumed Gigantic Proportions.

Berlin, Feb. 27.—The authorities of this city claim to be in possession of information to the effect that the demonstration of Thursday before the emperor's castle was not, as at first supposed, a spontaneous and unpremeditated movement.

They claim that it was a carefully planned outbreak, and that it would have assumed very much more important proportions had it not been for the fact that the people did not rise to any degrees in support of the anarchists and socialists who engineered the riots.

This, of course, is the official version of the affair, but it is doubtful if it is correct.

To Dynamite the Castle.

However, there is no doubt that the authorities had secret information of some kind, and that there is more truth in the story that the anarchists had planned to use dynamite upon the castle than at first supposed.

The entire force of troops composing the garrison of Berlin was kept under arms until 1:30 this morning, and even then they were only allowed place rest—boots on and accoutrements within reach.

It has also leaked out that 70 rounds of ball cartridge were served out to the troops in the early stages of the rioting, and that since that time the cavalry regiments, machine batteries and infantry regiments were all detailed, upon receipt of the word, to occupy the squares, thoroughfares, bridges, and other strategic points about the city.

In fact the military staff of the emperor had, upon his orders it is said, taken all the steps necessary to suppress a revolution.

The entire police force has been on duty night and day since the troubles commenced, and their watchfulness has not been relaxed this morning.

An Exciting Evening.

A most anxious evening was passed. The streets, cafes and beer gardens were packed until a late hour.

Almost the entire population seems to have turned out in anticipation of further rioting and the most sensational rumors filled the air, owing to the extraordinary precautions taken by the military and police staffs.

One report had it that the anarchists intended starting simultaneously 50 conflagrations in as many parts of Berlin, and in the confusion that would follow they were to set fire to hundreds of other buildings.

Then, it was added, a dynamite corps would make an attack upon the castle, using dynamite bombs upon the troops surrounding that building.

Some color was given to this startling story by the fact that the whole fire department of Berlin was early during the morning of Friday suddenly ordered to prepare to cover its districts independently in case of telegraphic communication being interrupted, and that every man was to remain at his post until further orders.

This, however, may only have been a measure of precaution natural to the disturbed state of the city. But, in the feverish state which the public has been in for the past 48 hours, the most trifling incidents have been magnified into matters of the utmost importance.

Plots Galore.

Nearly every man had some new story to tell of plots discovered, plans adopted or measures contemplated. In a word the city was wild with excitement, and it has not returned to its state of natural quiet.

The police passed last evening in watching all gathering groups and in dispersing them in the roughest manner possible.

Upon the slightest pretext they would charge upon, kick, slash at, and prod groups of inoffensive citizens whose only crime was that they happened to stop a few moments in some thoroughfare in order to discuss the latest alarming report in connection with the riots.

Brutal Policemen.

Indeed one of the features of the whole affair has been the brutally effective kicking of the police. Instead of the good, old-fashioned New York and London way of hammering the heads of a mob with stout night sticks, the police of Berlin, armed with swords, etc., charge upon rioters with these weapons, prick and cut them, hit them with the flat of their weapons, and, above all, kick vigorously on the shins and other parts of the bodies of their antagonists.

Another Riot.

Shortly after 11 o'clock last night there was another small riot, making the third of such disturbance of the peace since Thursday afternoon.

At that hour a number of isolated groups of excited men, some of them pretty well loaded down with beer, focussed in the northern districts until a gathering of about 1,500 men was formed and began listening to an address from a socialist leader.

The latter had hardly uttered a few burning remarks, condemning the brutal conduct of the authorities when the much sung "Marseillaise" broke upon the air and then the assemblage joined in voicing the words of the great revolutionary anthem.

Almost at the same moment, as if a carefully studied stage effect had been planned, a hundred blood red flags were waved in the air, and there was a scene of enthusiastic confusion.

Then, above the din of the "Marseillaise" were heard the heart stirring cries of "Bread, bread, bread." "Give us work or give us bread." Work or bread." "We are starving."

Robbing the Bake Shops.

With a roar like that of a pack of hungry tigers, the mob made a rush for an adjoining bakery, broke in the entire front of the store and cleared it of its contents in about the time it takes to write it. And then they munched at the stolen bread as if no food had passed their lips for days.

But this was not all; the supply of bread from the store was only sufficient to relieve the hunger of a small portion of the crowd, so a number of other bakeries, groceries and wine shops were broken into and emptied of their contents.

Two butchers' shops were also looted before a force of police strong enough to quell the riot could be summoned to the scene.

When the police did appear, the mob, evidently more full of hunger than of fight, scattered in all directions and left the police in possession of the dismantled stores.

The Emperor in Uniform.

The officers of the law followed in hot pursuit of the rioters, and overtook and kicked and slashed several of them; the main bodies escaped with at least a short supply of stolen provisions.

The emperor remained watching from the windows of the Schloss, surrounded by several generals and half a dozen aide-de-camps, until half an hour after midnight when he dismissed his staff after receiving reports, by orderlies from all the military and police districts.

Previous to retiring for the night the emperor dismissed the Alexander regiment of the guards which had been on duty throughout the day with fixed bayonets, the troops, however, being kept within easy call.

The emperor, report has it, slept in the undress uniform he had worn during the day, and arose three or four times before daylight to inquire if the city was quiet. Upon receiving reassuring reports his majesty returned to his couch and again courted slumber.

Press Censor at Work.

The fact was made clear to-day that the press censor of Berlin has been busily at work since Thursday, altering and changing the tenor of riot dispatches sent out of Germany. So much so, that a number of newspaper correspondents, the report of the London Times for instance, have been informed from their home offices that their dispatches were, in some cases, almost illegible as they had left whole sentences out and that their messages had breaks in them which made their stories unconnected.

The Times man was indignant and made an investigation of the matter. He called for his "copy" at the telegraph office where he filed it and found that whole phrases, sentences, paragraphs, words, and figures had been blotted out and that, in other cases, words he had not written had been interpolated.

In the latter instance, he noticed that the matter had been made to read so as to minimize the rioting and to make it appear that the affair was not nearly so important as it really was.

The Times correspondent indignantly demanded to know by whose authority these changes had been made and was calmly informed that it was by order of the press censor.

In view of this fact it may be explained that the correspondent of the United Press anticipating some such action upon the part of the press censor, caused his first dispatch, announcing the riots, which was 12 hours ahead of any other dispatch sent to the United States, to be filed at a certain place outside of Berlin, thus completely outwitting the press censor.

In view of the possibility that these dispatches may have been tampered with, though sent by a safe "underground" road, it should be repeated that the rioting was of a very important nature, and that the character of the conflicts between the police and the rioters cannot be much exaggerated.

Threatened the Emperor.

During the emperor's ride, yesterday afternoon through the Unter den Linden and around the Thiergarten, the mob twice threatened to drag the young monarch from his horse, and he was frequently greeted with storms of hooting and groaning, and serious disturbances were only averted by the large force of police present, who charged in among the jeering crowds and arrested a number of them.

This somewhat cooled the ardor of the others; but it was far from putting a stop to the remarks of displeasure with which the emperor was received.

KILLED BY HIS TEACHER.

A Fatal Blow Struck in the Heat of Passion.

The People Are Greatly Excited and Talk About Lynching the Murderer.

Elroy, Wis., Feb. 27.—Last night at Valley, a small town 16 miles southwest of this city, Albert Coucutt, died from the effects of a whipping he got at school from J. N. Allen, the teacher.

Coucutt was requested to remain indoors during recess. When the bell rang for recess Coucutt got up to go out with the other pupils and was requested by Allen to be seated, which he refused.

Allen took an ironwood stick which had been used for a stove poker some time and struck Coucutt over the head with it, when Rollin Myers, one of the pupils interfered. The young man was carried to a neighbor's, where he was taken with convulsions and died. There is talk of lynching Allen.

Violent Hemorrhage Attacks the Sick Man and Leaves Him in a Very Weak Condition—His Proposed Trip.

New York, Feb. 27.—The World this morning says that an intimate friend of the Gould family, whose statement may be absolutely depended upon, said yesterday that Jay Gould has been alarmingly ill since last Tuesday. It was on Tuesday night that he was first attacked. He ate heartily of rich food at a supper which was given him, and this unsettled his stomach. He went to his apartments and vomited freely; to such an extent, in fact, that he was greatly exhausted.

Wednesday he seemed to be somewhat better, although quite weak, but Dr. Munn considered the millionaire's condition sufficiently serious to justify him in remaining constantly in the Gould residence. Wednesday night the sick man was troubled with insomnia and Thursday morning found him weak and suffering from want of rest.

About 12:30 Friday morning he was seized with violent hemorrhage. Dr. Munn and Mr. Gould's family were hastily summoned.

Mr. Gould has never before been attacked with hemorrhage and it may therefore be readily understood how seriously the members of his family were alarmed on this occasion. Dr. Munn quieted their fears by assuring them that the hemorrhage came from the stomach and not from the lungs, and that the attack was merely local, having been undoubtedly brought on by the vomiting with which he was seized on Tuesday night.

Mr. Gould was greatly weakened by the exertion of violent coughing, but not by loss of blood. Yesterday morning he was much better and continued to improve during the day, though being somewhat restless and irritable. If Mr. Gould's condition continues to improve it is the intention to allow him to start on his contemplated southern trip on Monday or Tuesday next.

At the Windsor hotel last night Wall street men seemed to look upon Mr. Gould's repeated attacks of illness as ominous.

THE CUBAN REVOLUTION.

Important News Expected in New York at Any Moment—It May be the Report of a Battle.

New York, Feb. 27.—The World this morning says the news of an impending revolution was the absorbing topic of discussion in Spanish-American circles yesterday. It is stated that important news from the revolutionist party in Cuba was expected here to-day. A secret meeting of the leaders of Porto Ricans was held last night, probably in regard to the organization of their club, which is to be formed on Sunday.

DEATH IN IRON POLES.

Shocking Accident Reported From Omaha.

The Life Burned Out of a Boy Who Came in Contact with an Electric Pole.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 27.—Harry Williams 16 years old, met with an extraordinary death by an electric shock last night.

Young Williams was talking to a number of friends who were standing near a pole which supported a number of electric light wires.

It was noticed that Harry had a portion of an iron hoop in his hand, with which he would occasionally strike the pole.

Suddenly, and without the slightest warning, Williams sprang forward, at the same time uttering a piercing shriek.

Then he sank motionless upon the sidewalk and when picked up he was found to be dead.

The only mark found upon the body when it was examined was a burn on the hand which had held the hoop.

It is thought there must have been a leakage in the electric light wire on the pole, and that the moment of contact of the boy's iron hoop with the pole he must have either stepped into some water or upon another piece of iron and thus completed the circuit.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

Business Not Good During Last Week.

Iron and Steel Production Has Increased Largely—Demand for Cotton—General Review.

New York, Feb. 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The state of domestic trade has not materially changed, though the continuing dullness is perhaps more generally felt. Boston notes trade of satisfactory volume, without considerable activity and large western orders in dry goods.

At Hartford trade in most lines is reported, with a little decrease in dry goods and slow collections. At Philadelphia money is easy, iron much depressed by southern sales, hardware dull in the city, with sales ahead of last year, and satisfactory orders from the west. Baltimore notes good business in dry goods, but slow collections. At Cincinnati the shoe manufacturer is doing well, cigar factories are busy and the demand for machinery is brisk. Trade is better at Cleveland in all lines except boots and shoes, but iron is still inactive.

The only great branch of manufacture which makes discouraging reports at present is the iron and steel industry, and the difficulty there is not in the shrinking consumption, but in an enormous increase in production. In cotton a larger consumption than has ever been known before is sustained by a demand so active that advances in the prices of some qualities are occasionally reported, in spite of the cheapness of the products. In woolens the mills have recently been much more active, with larger orders for goods, and manufacturers' purchases of wool are for the past week much larger than a year ago.

The building trades are irregular, some cities reporting greater activity, but where the year's strike shortened hours and increased wages there has been a general shrinkage which affects the iron industry.

The rail combination also restricts purchases of steel rails, and started the year it appears, with orders for only 525,000 tons, no transactions having been reported for the past week. There are orders placed for several thousand cars and some locomotives, and the demand for plate iron is somewhat better, and for plate iron satisfactory at present, but no improvement is seen in bar iron, while the market for pig iron is depressed by sales which are generally attributed to financial difficulties. Southern No. 1 is even quoted at $16.50 per ton, about the lowest prices ever made.

Money continues in abundant supply, with no pressure at any interior market, but the large shipments of gold, said to be for Russia, lead to the belief that money must be dearer soon.

Business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 270 as compared with totals of 299 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 290.

LAND SALES IN THE WEST

Winchesters Rule the Day in Colorado.

Settlers Propose to Have Their Rights,

And Will Make it Warm for Any Crowd of Speculators to Try Any Freeze-Out Games.

Creede, Col., Feb. 27.—It was a formidable looking crowd that attended the lot sale yesterday.

Many had revolvers strapped in their belts and whisky flowed so freely that the governor was asked to talk to the crowd to calm them down.

At 1 o'clock he addressed a meeting of 500 or 600 in the tent where the boomers had their meeting Thursday night.

An arbitration committee was appointed to settle any dispute that might arise between the claimants for the same lot.

While no clash occurred at yesterday's sale it is feared there may be trouble between property owners when the improved property is reached.

A red-hot meeting was held in the big tent in the evening and a committee of 25 residents volunteered to guard the auction stand.

A platform will be erected upon which the squatters' representative will stand, and when a lot is called, upon which is an improvement, a warning will be given and the committee agree to remove bidders from the ground should violence be necessary to keep the price at a minimum.

WINTER WHEAT A FAILURE.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 27.—February reports from southern Minnesota indicate that the winter wheat crop will be almost a total failure.

Many fields appear brown and dead, owing to the light snow and constant violent changes in the temperature.

At least 50 per cent. of the grain from Winona westward will be plowed up and spring wheat sown.

Dead and Dying in Almost Every House.

The Living Look Almost Like Skeletons.

One Doctor for Every Eight Thousand People and No Medicine at Any Price.

London, Feb. 27.—A correspondent who has been visiting, in company with Count Tolstoi, the famine stricken districts of Samara, says that free tables of food are crowded with starving applicants, who look like living skeletons.

A peasant who appealed to Tolstoi for aid said that his father and mother had just died of starvation.

In every second house people can be found dead or dying, and the sick go without attention, and there is not more than one doctor to every 8,000 people, and medicine cannot be obtained, in some places, at any price.

Desertion of the Most Cruel Kind.

A Father Arrested with the Awful Suspicion Against Him That He Murdered His Wife.

Ashland, Wis., Feb. 27.—A family of three little children were found in a squallid hut nearly frozen and starving to death this morning. One of them was a nursing baby. They had burned their feet in trying to keep warm. The father had been on a spree and the mother had disappeared mysteriously over a week ago and has not been seen since. Charles Crowley, the father, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of foul play, as it is alleged that he made threats to put his wife out of the way and his children say he told them they were "going to get a new mamma."

BOUGHT A STEAMER.

A Toledo Syndicate Buys the Rust.

A Milwaukee Steamer Will Hereafter Hail From Toledo—Consideration $40,000.

L. S. Sullivan, T. J. Southard, H. C. Thatcher and Wm. Robertson, of Toledo, have bought the steamer David W. Rust, of the Schlesinger Inter-State Transit company, of Milwaukee, for $40,000. The Rust is 660 tons measurement, and will carry 1,200 tons. She will have a grain carrying capacity of about 40,000 bushels.

The Rust was built in 1873 and rebuilt in 1882. She is a powerful vessel for her size and registers A2 at Lloyds.

THEY STOLE HIM.

An Editor Gets Into a Bad Crowd in Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 27.—Persons arriving from Paris report the kidnaping of C. B. Moore, of the Bluegrass Blade, a publication which is in the "blasting business." Moore was on the train and stepped off on the platform at Springvale, a station beyond Georgetown, in Scott county.

Several persons at the station pressed about him, and he was not permitted to get on the train again.

He appealed to the conductor, but the latter said that Moore being off the train he could not interfere, so the cars steamed out, leaving him in the hands of his captors.

What they intend doing with him could not be divined from their actions, but as he has been writing up people of these parts pretty freely it is surmised they intend to force him to sign a retraction or take a dose of white cap remedy.

BAIL ACCEPTED.

Miss Johnson Released on a Ten Thousand Dollar Bond.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 27.—Judge Dubose to-day admitted Lillie Johnson to bail in the sum of $10,000. Miss Johnson was allowed to go home in company with her father. Bail will be furnished.

FATALLY INJURED.

Bonham, Tex., Feb. 27.—Seven passengers were seriously injured by the overturning of a dummy car on the Rapid Transit railway last night.

W. J. McClendon, the engineer, received injuries about about the spine and head which will prove fatal.

W. C. Dean, Malcolm Biggerstaff and W. A. Holt were seriously injured.

The car was totally wrecked.

NO CONFIDENCE IN M. LOUBET.

London, Feb. 27.—The Paris correspondent of the Standard doubts the success of Senator Loubet in forming or conducting a ministry—a man 16 years in public life without making his mark. No doubt the president knows M. Loubet and his character well, but his confidence in him cannot be shared by the public.

SUIT COMMENCED.

Findlay, O., Feb. 27.—Col. J. R. Montague, of New York, has begun suit against James A. Wells and Samuel J. Tappan, two wealthy glass manufacturers of this city, for $100,000 damages for alleged defamation of his character and injury to his business as a seller of the Montague roller cotton gin.

FRENCH MOVEMENTS.

Paris, Feb. 27.—It is reported that the French government intends to make Bizerta, in the harbor of Tunis, an impregnable fortress, and will make a canal available for the largest vessels from the entrance of the harbor to the lake in the rear of the city.

DISPLAYED GREAT NERVE.

A Murderer Who Met Death Bravely.

With an Oath He Instructed the Infuriated Mob to Proceed with Their Killing.

Marshfield, Mo., Feb. 27.—Dick Cullen, who murdered a 4-year old child a few days ago by throwing it into an unused well, was lynched last night by a mob of 150 men.

A secret meeting was held Thursday night, when it was decided to kill Cullen by mob violence. According to their program the party started on their mission at 10 o'clock last night, halted on the west side of the square, procured a rope and marched to the jail, where the sheriff was overpowered without much difficulty.

Cullen showed much nerve when asked if he was guilty, and answered, "Pull your d—d rope." He was pulled up about nine feet, and in a few minutes he was dead.

The lynchers then dispersed quietly. Cullen's mother is under arrest, suspected of complicity in the crime.

The babe which was killed was found founr years ago at Cullen's stepfather's door, and the murderer thought it would be adopted as an heir.

RECORDER TROTTER DEAD.

Dedham, Mass., Feb. 27.—James M. Trotter, one of the best known colored men in this section of the state, died last night. He was recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia under President Cleveland. He was a veteran of the civil war. He was 48 years old.

DEATH IN THE FLAMES.

A Fatal Fire in Hardin County This Morning.

A Hotel Destroyed and the Son of the Proprietor Perishes in the Conflagration.

Upper Sandusky, O., Feb. 27.—(Special)—At three o'clock this morning the Scott house, at Forest, Hardin county, was discovered on fire.

There were upwards of twenty guests in the hotel at the time. The alarm was sounded and all succeeded in getting out.

While endeavoring to escape, the son of the landlord, a young man named Woodside, was caught by the falling walls and perished in the flames.

The entire structure, together with another near by, was totally consumed. Both were old frame buildings and the loss is not over $1,500. Mr. Woodside, the victim, formerly resided in Bucyrus.

WENT OVER THE FALLS.

A Sensation at Niagara Yesterday.

Two Men Reported to Have Been Swept Over in a Boat They Could Not Manage

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Feb. 27.—All sorts of wild rumors were floating about yesterday afternoon that two men in a boat had been seen to pass down the rapids and over the falls.

Diligent inquiry failed to establish the fact to a certainty, but Benjamin Bigelow, a hack driver, who was driving a party of strangers around Goat Island, made the statement that while thus engaged he met a man and his wife, also driving, who told him in an excited manner that they had seen two men in a boat shoot down the river beyond the Three Sister Islands.

Another sightseer also claimed to have seen the boat and the men in it going toward the Horseshoe falls.

Bigelow ran to a point where the falls were in view, but if a boat had passed, it had gone over the falls. The park policemen were notified but they were unable to find any trace of a boat below the cataract.

It is not known that anyone is missing from here and if the report is true the persons were probably from up the river and had been caught in the current. The whirlpool will be watched to-day.

HOW IT WAS DONE,

An Interview with Messenger McInerny,

Who Was Held Up by Young Perry.

He Relates the Story of the Assault and Robbery

As Seen by the Man Who Was the Victim.

The Bold Highwayman Wanted to Make an Example of the Man in Order to Make Future Work More Easy.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Messenger McInerney, who was shot by Perry, the express robber, last Sunday, consented to talk with a reporter this morning.

Referring to the breaking of the glass in the door of the car, he said: "I looked up and there, almost in my face, was a huge revolver, a hand and an arm. At the same instant the robber yelled at the top of his voice, and in a tone I shall never forget, 'throw up your hands.'

"It was a terrible yell, only such an one as I imagine a cowboy could give, and it was meant to strike terror. I knew, of course, that the robber was at the door, but it was a very dark night and I could see nothing beyond the arm which was thrust through the broken glass.

"I jumped to the side of the car next to the robber and raised my revolver in both hands, cocking it as I did so. I see that Perry says he afterward found my pistol on the floor half cocked and that it had not been discharged. I cannot say positively that I fired it, but I know that I aimed it at the spot where I thought the robber must be behind the arm at the window, and pulled the trigger.

"At the same moment there was a discharge and I fell stunned by a blow over the eye and my revolver went spinning from my hand. It was then that I was shot in the left hand, although I did not know it at the time. Recovering from the effects of the blow on my head I threw myself forward on my hands and knees and crawled rapidly to the rear of the car, where I reached up and pulled both the bell cord and the air whistle cord.

"The air whistle cord is small and hard and as I pulled it down with all my might it cut into my fingers on the inside, which left these marks, as you see, cutting the flesh and making my right hand stiff.

"I must have pulled the cord three or four times. This should cause a little air whistle right in front of the engineer to blow and thus give him the signal to apply the air brakes. But it must have failed to work.

"I tried, too, to find the lever of the air brake of the express car, which, when pulled down, would set tightly the brakes of my car, but although I groped about on the side of the car I could not find the lever.

"In the meantime the robber had entered the car by pushing back the door. I did not hear him enter. I could not on account of the rumbling of the train. He lighted a match, which I first thought was a flash from a bull's eye lantern. By the light of the match he saw lying on the floor my revolver and securing that he knew I was powerless.

"Then he lighted some waybills on the floor and seizing one of them as they burned up, he raised the lighted brand above his head and rushed to the forward end of the car yelling 'damn you, I'll kill you.' He had heard the air whistle when I pulled the cord for that sound is heard in the car when the whistle cord is pulled and it made him mad.

"He expected the whistle would be heard by the engineer and the train would be stopped. When he did not find me at the forward end of the car he turned back and lighted the lamp with a flaming way-bill from the pile on the floor.

"Then seeing me in the rear end of the car he made a rush, yelling at the top of his voice: 'You ——; I'll make an example of you for your associates.' I knew by that he meant he would kill me, if necessary, so that other express messengers would remember my fate if they attempted to resist him in the future.

"As he yelled and came at me I rose up and he fired, the ball taking effect in my leg. I did not know that he had shot me then. I don't want you to think I was not frightened by this time, for I was, and when he threatened me again I told him if he would not kill me I would do anything he asked."

McInerney is pale and haggard and shows evidence of great suffering. He is very weak and with difficulty was able to tell the story. He is improving, however, and his physicians have no doubt of his recovery.

WANTS NO SECOND PLACE

Campbell Will Not Take the Tail of the Ticket.

Probable That a Western Man Will be Taken.

It Would be a Queer Outcome Should Campbell and McKinley be the Two National Leaders This Fall.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Ex-Gov. Campbell, of Ohio, emphatically declared last evening that he was not a candidate for second place on the democratic national ticket and would not accept the nomination if it was tendered him. As to the probable nomination for the head of the ticket he said: "If it is apparent that neither Mr. Hill nor Mr. Cleveland can be nominated it looks to me as if the convention would look to the west for a candidate."

The ex-governor did not say that he thought Ohio might capture the prize in this event, but it would be rather strange if Campbell and McKinley should be the national leaders.

TRAGEDY AT A CHARIVARI.

Newport, Ark., Feb. 27.—A sad tragedy occurred Thursday night near here. A couple named Mr. Swearingen and Miss Bradley were married in the afternoon and were visited by a charivari party during the night. The mob called upon the newly-married couple to appear, and as they refused to do so some one shot through the window, filling the bride's head with buckshot and fatally wounding her. The identity of the shooter is not known.

A successful masquerade ball was given last evening at Pythian castle under the auspices of the building board. The affair was invitational, and a very pleasant party of maskers were assembled. Another meeting of the city central committee was held last evening at the Toledo Republican club rooms. A call was authorized for the city convention, to be held at Druid hall Tuesday, March 22, the caucuses to gather the night previous. One delegate was allowed for every 40 votes, which will allow 199 delegates in the convention. Now the fun will commence in dead earnest.

The Mayor's Gas Committee—Meeting This Afternoon.

A meeting of the mayor's gas committee will be held this evening to consider further movements. It is now proposed that the committee be sub-divided. That one-half go to Pittsburg and the other continue the investigation in the field.

President Parsons suggests that if the committee desire the investigation can be extended to this end of the line.

They Danced Last Evening and are Arranging for Something Big.

The wives and friends of the members of the Toledo Commercial Travelers association enjoyed themselves last evening at the monthly hop given by the drummers. About 80 ladies and gentlemen were present, and it was a very enjoyable affair.

The series will close next month with a masquerade ball, for which extensive preparations are being made.

WALTER NICHOLS

Tells the Y. M. C. A. Juniors Something About Railroads.

The Juniors of the Y. M. C. A. listened to an interesting paper last evening on railroads and how they are operated by Walter Nichols. The speaker handled the subject in such an able manner that he was requested to appear again before the seniors. Mr. Nichols has made the subject of railroading a study. He reviewed the progress of railway construction in Europe and this country and presented the subject in a manner that could not fail to please and instruct his hearers.

"NOTHING TO PAY."

A Beautiful Song Rendered in a Beautiful Manner.

Those who heard the words of that exquisite composition, "Nothing to Pay," as sung by Mrs. W. A. Willet, of Findlay, last evening at the revival service at St. John's M. E. church listened to a rare treat. The singer's sweet, sympathetic voice was so fitted to the beautiful words of the hymn that the rendition added much to the solemnity of the occasion. Mrs. Willet, who, by the way, is the daughter of Rev. Dr. Fish, of St. John's, is the soprano at St. Paul's church of this city. She is the possessor of a remarkably well-cultivated voice, and alway gives her hearers a great deal of pleasure.

SHERIFF SALES.

Property Disposed of Under the Hammer This Morning.

Sheriff Stuart disposed of the following property at public sale this morning:

The city of Toledo for the use of, J. T. Coghlin against Michael J. Enright, east 15 feet of lot 35 and lot 36, Calkins' addition. Sold to F. W. Wright for $602.

John Dillon against Ann McPartland et al., lot 35 Germania addition, to A. Nesbit, $650.

Adam Waldman against Otto Radoty, lot 39, Broadway addition, to W. H. & J. J. Leith, $635.

Calvin K. Bennett against George W. Benedict et al., 24 acres of land in Washington township, $3,000.

THE WASTE OF GAS.

Something Ought To Be Done to Prevent It.

"There should be a law to prevent the constant waste of natural gas in the field," remarked Superintendent Daily, of the Northwestern Natural Gas company to a Bee this morning. "Every farmer, who has leased his property, and there has been any gas developed, has a big flambo torch blowing away day and night. They won't accept a lease unless it provides free gas for heating and lighting purposes and all they can use. This is not so bad if the privilege is not abused, but is nothing to be compared with the waste in the field. A wild-catter drills a well for oil, and strikes a good flow of gas. He opens the well up and lets the gas blow away, hoping to exhaust the flow and secure oil. The law, as it now stands, gives three months time to close a well in. In that time millions and millions of gas have been wasted. I don't know what the provisions of the proposed law are, but I think there should be some action taken and that at once."

SEND IN SOME BOOKS

For the Benefit of the Children's Home Library.

"I wish you would tell the people that donations in the shape of juvenile books and stories would be greatly appreciated by the trustees and children of the Children's home," remarked L. G. Richardson. "We have a splendid library, but no books to put in it. The children should have books of some kind to read. The trustees would be glad to provide them, but we are chopped down financially to the last cent to keep the institution moving. So we ask for donations. There are plenty of children over the city who have books that they never look at, and don't want, and would be most gratefully received by the homeless children at the home."

TO PAY A CHURCH DEBT.

Efforts of the A. M. E. Church of Toledo to Relieve Itself.

Messrs. George Fields, Joseph Moore, J. W. Armstead, W. E. Clemens and F. D. Hightower, representing the A. M. E. church society, have issued a circular announcing a desire to provide means to liquidate the indebtedness on their building, and they confidently anticipate the aid of the public. It will be remembered that Hon. James M. Ashley delivered an address for the benefit of the society on the subject of "The Afro-American's Emancipation," and following this Mr. Ashley generously consented that the address might be printed in pamphlet form, the proceeds to be applied on the debt. This has been done, and the committee desires to dispose of it now at the small charge of 15 cents per copy. The address is thus put within the reach of all, and as the cause is a very worthy one, it is hoped the efforts of the organization to free itself from debt will meet with a hearty response, not alone from the people of Toledo, but residents of the neighborhood.

CIRCUIT COURT DECISIONS

Handed Down This Morning—Some of Them Important.

The circuit court handed down opinions this morning as follows:

The appeal of the plaintiff in the case of Lou M. Price against Charles McDonough was dismissed.

The plaintiff owns lot 23, Calkins' addition, and McDonough owns the adjoining. The suit was entered in common pleas court by the plaintiff to compel McDonough to remove part of his dwelling and woodshed because they obstructed the plaintiff's light. The petition was dismissed in the common pleas court.

In the case of the Gashe Lumber company, plaintiff in error, against John Gass, the decision of the lower court was reversed, and new trial ordered. It is an action involving a small amount on an account.

In the case of Geo. A. Chase, administrator, against Samuel A. Hunter, county treasurer, an action to enjoin the collection of taxes, the defendant is enjoined from collecting taxes levied on water works bonds and $28.07 penalty.

The judgment of the lower court in the case of Nicholas Russell against the state of Ohio was affirmed. Russell was indicted by the grand jury and convicted in common pleas court on the charge of maintaining a nuisance. He was fined $10 and costs and the nuisance ordered abated.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS.

Notes of Events Happening Among Them.

Mona Alliance lodge, No. 113, I. O. G. T., last Tuesday evening received 13 applications and initiated seven new members. Their reports for the quarter show an average attendance of 35 members and 12 officers out of a membership of 58. Next Tuesday evening the exercises under "good of the order" will partake of the nature of a pancake social and be open to the public. In the near future they will give a "night cap" and "clothes pin" social, with a lantern drill.

Miss Cora B. Taylor, grand superintendent of Juvenile Templars, is doing good work for the I. O. G. T. in this district. During the past week interesting and profitable meetings have been held at Pemberville, Waterville, Milton Center, and announced for Prairie Depot, West Millgrove, Ironville and Grand Rapids. Juvenile temples have been organized at West Toledo, applications received from Hoytsville, North Baltimore and Lagrange street (Toledo), and several weak temples reorganized as the result of her work during the past month.

Beacon Light lodge, No. 205, I. O. G. T., will give one of the finest entertainments ever had in the Ninth ward at Lincoln hall on Broadway, next Wednesday. In addition to a very interesting program, Harry B. White, G. C. T., will give his new lecture, "With Stanley Through Africa," illustrated with nearly 100 photo-optican views. As Mr. White was with the government squadron on the African coast for three years, a good portion of his lecture will be descriptive of what he actually saw, and which pertains to Mr. Stanley's explorations on the dark continent.

Steps are being taken to organize a company of the "American Army" in Toledo. The organization is on the same plan as the National Guard, but is an independent, self equiped and self-sustained militia, the members of which are pledged to total abstinence. Springfield has three companies, and Dayton and Xenia one each. At the McKinley inaugural the First regiment was assigned the post of honor, next to the Cleveland Grays, and at the close of the ceremonies were tendered a banquet and reception by the Lincoln league of Columbus.

THE ATHENS CASE.

Dr. Wilson's Report to the Governor.

Mrs. Phillips Was Not Abused and the Colored Spots on Her Skin Were From Other Causes.

Columbus, O., Feb. 27.—Governor McKinley has received the report of Dr. James L. Wilson, of the state board of charities, and of the trustees of the Athens Asylum for the Insane, of the investigation made into the charges of cruelty and neglect in the case of Mrs. Sarah L. Phillips, of Wellston, O.

Mr. Allison was the member of the board who made the investigation, being accompanied by Secretary John G. Doren.

After describing his visit to the asylum and the taking of testimony of the attendants, he goes on to tell of the condition of Mrs. Phillips.

She was unable, he said, to walk up or down stairs, being old and quite fleshy. Not lying down it was her custom to sit in a large arm chair, leaning heavily on her right side against the arm as though watching to catch something.

Her muscles were in a relaxed condition and her flesh very sensitive to pressure. After describing the discoloration of the skin, giving it the technical name of ecchymosis, or extravasation of blood, caused by the rupture of the capillary blood vessels, the doctor says: "It is my belief that the ecchymose condition of the chest, found and described as above, was produced by the force required to manage or control her while ministering to the natural, necessary demands of her condition, and was not produced by cruelty or neglect."

Harsh, purgative remedies are fast giving way to the gentle action and mild effects of Carter's Little Liver Pills. If you try them, they will certainly please you.

Captain and Mrs. W. G. Alexander gave a Boston supper to a party of friends last evening at their beautiful home on Tenth street. The company consisted chiefly of those who went together to the G. A. R. encampment, at Boston three years ago. The first anniversary was observed by a similar meeting with Capt. and Mrs. Stewart. It is a delightful way of keeping up pleasant associations. Brown bread and baked beans formed one of the courses and more delicious dishes than those served last night were never put upon table in any Back-Bay mansion or Nantasket cafe. The supper was perfect in every appointment, the rooms were fragrant with primroses and hyacinths of home growth, a conservatory being a recent addition to the Alexander residence. Music, pedro and chat helped to pass the time most pleasantly. Among the guests were Gen. J. W. and Mrs. Greene, L. E. Clark and Mrs. Clark, Capt. A. MINING STOCKS.

Speculation in Them Falling Off—Mining Prospects for 1892.

In the Engineering Magazine for February, Albert Williams, jr., says: There was very little speculation in mining stocks in 1891. The public for some years has been shy of them, as vehicles for gambling, while quite ready for permanent investment. There was a spasmodic, short-lived spurt in Comstock shares in the spring. Otherwise the share market was unusually quiet. Stock speculation has, it must be admitted, benefited mining to a certain extent by enabling large enterprises to be floated and bringing in capital in small amounts; but on the whole the evil effects have far outweighed the good. It is no longer necessary to make stock "deals" to interest capital, which now goes into mining as a regular business just as in other productive industries, looking to the mines, not the exchange, for returns. Many of the most profitable mines are held by close corporations which prefer not to list their shares.

Speculation in mining properties, however, has not abated. Without it, and without the intervention of the inevitable middleman, it would be difficult to bring mine-locator and capitalist together. But of the many heavy transfers effected during the last few months, involving of course intermediate "deals" of which the public hears nothing, none have created scandals such as disgraced the mining history of former years. When the buyers purchase with the intention of really mining they are likely to look rather closely into the nature of the investment, and however liberal they may be they are better educated now.

English corporations owning gold and silver mines in the United States have been more fortunate in their investments of late, because of greater caution in selecting properties and by doing better mining. A number of undoubtedly good properties, including a few very big ones, have thus recently passed into foreign ownership, at prices fully as high as warranted by the showing of the mines.

The immediate prospect for gold and silver mining and for the metals mined in connection with them is extremely bright. The industry has settled down to a business-like basis and is conducted with greater technical skill and certainty than ever before. The output this year probably will be larger than that of 1891, not so much because of any extraordinary finds as because of the greater number of working mines and the opportunity which enlarged concentrator and smelter capacity and railroad extension will offer for the treatment of known reserves of medium ores and concentrates from low-grade ores. Precious-metal mining will employ more men in 1892 than in 1891, and, by adding largely to the wealth of the country, react favorably upon other industries.

Bovi, Bovi,
A Great Tonic.

REPORTERS ARE GENTLEMEN.

Don't Attempt to Outwit a Clever Newspaper Man—Be Candid With Him.

Don't tell a newspaper reporter, when he calls on you on business, things which you do not wish him to print, advises the Portland Oregonian. He does not call for information for the fun of it. He is there on business. When you meet a reporter socially don't say to him every time you open your mouth, "This is not for publication."

If you really have information to give either give it cheerfully and frankly or refuse with firmness, but don't try to be clever and attempt any "funny business." If you give the information frankly you will in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred be accurately reported and respectfully treated. If you refuse firmly and politely your reticence will be respected. If you try to outwit a reporter by an effort to mislead him or by direct misrepresentation you are sure to make a mess of it and wish you had been better advised.

Disabuse your mind of any foolish impression that the newspaper reporters are malignant persons, trying to stir up trouble in the world. They are, as a rule, the opposite of this, and have as high an idea as other men of the relative advantages of contentment and strife.

A lady possessing a treasure of a domestic was surprised to learn that said treasure was about to leave her employ, writes a Detroit Free Press correspondent.

"I consider your conduct very ungrateful," she said angrily, "I have paid you good wages and taught you to do many things, and this is the way you treat me. It is shameful."

The girl murmured something about being sorry, but persisted in her determination to go.

"You can at least tell me why you are leaving," said her mistress.

"Well," said the girl, "when you were sick I gave my bed to the nurse and slept on the floor, and I can not get over the cold I caught then, and carrying all your meals upstairs gave me a hurt in the side, and I froze my fingers hanging out clothes, and the doctor says it's too hard, an' if I don't quit I'll break down."

"Nellie, is this true?" asked her mistress with tears in her eyes; "I never thought of it before. You shall stay and I will get someone to help you, and I'll take care of you myself until you are quite well and strong."

Nellie stayed, and her mistress did as she promised, and this true story is commended to other housekeepers who have a treasure they are thoughtlessly overburdening.

RULED BY A MOB.

Rioters Hold Full Sway in Indianapolis.

Police Interference in the Street Car Strike

Results in Much Disorder and Damage.

Ten Thousand Excited People Gathered,

Who Have Entirely Stopped the Business of the City—Hand-to-Hand Conflicts Between the Workmen and the Officers—An Exciting Day.

Indianapolis, Feb. 27.—No less than a dozen riots have occurred here since 6 o'clock this morning.

At an early hour, and by pre-arrangement with the street car company, Mayor Sullivan ordered out the police to assist in the running of cars. The strikers and sympathizers fought every inch of ground, and at 7 o'clock three cars were overturned in the gutters.

By 8 o'clock the mobs on the different streets numbered fully 10,000 men, and business generally is interrupted by the violent proceedings.

Nearly 50 arrests have been made and a dozen cars injured by rocks.

The police force is composed of only 110 men, and is almost overcome, and would be utterly defeated in case of a battle.

So far clubs have been the only weapons used, but the fever of the mob is increasing and a bloody encounter is probable.

So easy in its action, harmless and effectual in relieving is Simmons Liver Regulator.

"THE THREE POPES."

An English correspondent in Rome says that the recent anxiety about the health of the pope and the persistent rumors of his impending death are due to the prevalence of a popular superstition which has some secret believers even in the vatican itself. As the cardinals, members of the sacred college, are always supposed to die in groups of three, at short intervals from each other, so it is supposed that "the three popes," as the Roman phrase has it, must go together. "Papa Negro"—black pope, as the general of the Jesuits is called—has just died; the "Papa Rosso," which is the popular title of the head of the propaganda fide, followed him almost immediately; and now, say the searchers after omens, it is the turn of the white-robed pontiff. The spell may be broken, however, according to the old legend, by the speedy election of a new "Red Pope," which occurred the other day when Ledochowski was appointed as Simeoni's successor.

SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. It is the most ancient of all diseases, and very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. If you suffer from scrofula, try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, my little boy, three years old, being a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. We all took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and all have been cured of the scrofula. My little boy is entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ROBBED A MAIL POUCH.

Tiffin, O., Feb. 27.—(Special)—As the mail pouch containing matter from Findlay and the west was thrown off at the Baltimore & Ohio depot at 10 o'clock last night two men seized and made off with it before the night expressman, whose duty it is to take charge of the night mails, could interfere.

The pouch was found cut open in a freight car this morning and its contents rifled.

SOME LOCAL TALENT

Bursts Forth and Scintillates Brilliantly

In the Presentation of the Comedy School at Wheeler's Last Evening—A Grand Success.

Society turned out in full force last evening and Wheeler's opera house was filled to overflowing. Every seat was taken and standing room was at a premium. The attraction was the comedy School, presented by local talent for the benefit of the Day Nursery, a worthy charity, that during the day takes care of the children of working mothers who are unable to do so.

In the first place the comedy is a difficult one to produce, especially for amateurs. If it had been the first night performance of old time professional actors in the piece, it would not have been much smoother. As a rule people do not judge amateurs as they should. They are apt to be too critical. They don't know that it is the rule that many a professional company gives a very poor interpretation of any piece at the first performances.

Let any company of amateurs produce a piece for three months every night, then the critic could criticise conscientiously. Under the existing circumstances, then, the performance last evening was capital. Many of the scenes were perfect and could not have been bettered. When the curtain went up on the group of school girls in the glen, listening to Mrs. E. D. Scheble, as Bella, reading the story of Cinderella, the audience knew that the young people were at home and that they would see something good, and when the curtain went down on the act the applause was deafening and prolonged. Although the participants were down in their dressing rooms they had to come back on the stage and take a curtain call.

Of course Mrs. Scheble as Bella, was excellent. Everyone expected that she would be, and no one was disappointed. She was easy, graceful and natural. Nothing more could be wished.

Miss Louise Campbell as Louise Tighe surprised and delighted her friends. She has superior talent and interpreted every line in the spirit that the author must have written it. In fact her performance might be called wonderful, for it is an actual fact that there has not an ingenue played in Toledo this season, professionally, who appeared to a better advantage than did Miss Campbell last evening. No Toledo amateur has ever done better work.

Chas. O'Brien, always a conscientious worker, appeared in a role entirely different from anything he has heretofore played. His Dr. Suteliff was excellent. The make-up was perfect, he had his lines pat, and his acting and business throughout were exceedingly praiseworthy.

Another young Toledoan whose acting was a delightful surprise was Malcom Russell, who impersonated Mr. Krux, the pessimistic old tutor. His dressing and make-up for the character were for him half the battle, and his excellent conception of the part and the finished manner in which he carried it to the last fall of the curtain won for him many words of praise. His friends will be pleased to learn that he has consented to appear in the Press club entertainment, together with Mr. O'Brien.

Frank Roff made a very good Lord Beaufoy. He dressed the part well, was easy and natural in his lines, and made an excellent impression. His performance was additional evidence that he can do many things well.

Robert Evans as Beau Farintosh, did some good acting. He has had much practice and is very familiar with the workings behind the footlights. His first appearance was the sign for an enthusiastic hand.

Miss Thorn as Mrs. Dr. Sutcliffe, carried a difficult part well. She looked the part to perfection, and did some very clever work.

The other characters were assumed by Witt Cochran, Misses Florence Boos, Fannie Clark, Laura Thorne, Fanchon Hubbell, Dot Trowbridge, Ora McMullen, Gertrude Clark, Lola Garner, Nellie Cassady, Alice Thorne, Maud Seagrave, Della Van Hoesen and little Frances Gates. All did well and added much to the success of the performance.

WE HAVE ENOUGH ICE

Housed Hereabouts to Supply Toledo Trade.

The Price Will be the Same as Last Year—A Good Quality of Ice—None to Ship Away.

The icemen have had to do some lively work in this vicinity to house a crop sufficient for the use of consumers in this immediate territory the coming summer. A Bee circulating around among the dealers of the frozen article learned that while enough ice was cut here and hereabouts to supply Toledo, there will not be one ounce to spare. No ice will be shipped away from this territory. The central part of the state will not need any more ice as the crop was unusually large, in fact much larger than in Michigan, which is usually the reverse.

A great deal of ice was cut at Sandusky this year. Of course there is no hope of getting any more ice now, and the condition of the supply can be gathered from the statements of the following ice consumers and dealers:

A representative of the Michigan Lake Ice company spoke as follows: "We have plenty of ice. We will supply the family and office trade with ice from Devil's Lake, Mich. An excellent quality of ice was cut on the Maumee above the water works for the use of butchers and cold storage and like purposes. The river ice was exceptionally fine this year and a very large quantity was cut here that will help us out wonderfully."

At the office of the Toledo Lake Ice company they said: "A large quantity of fine ice was cut on the river. It has been of an excellent quality. We have enough good ice to carry us through the season. Of course Toledo will draw a big portion of its supply from the north. There was lots of ice cut in the central part of the state, but that will go south. Lots of ice was cut at Sandusky, but of course that will also go to other points than Toledo. However, we have plenty here."

George Schuller said: "I have just returned from a trip up in Michigan. We have some 15,000 tons housed up there to draw from. We have plenty of ice to supply our trade. The price will not be any higher than last year."

L. J. Seek—"We have all the ice we will need to supply our trade and more too. We have 25,000 tons at Whitmore Lake, Mich., of a much better quality than was cut last year. The price will be the same as last season, I think."

SPLENDID HEADQUARTERS.

The Young Women's Christian Association Now at Home.

It is with great pleasure that the ladies of the Y. W. C. A. announce the furnishing and opening of the rooms recently rented for this work in the Bell building, south of the postoffice. These are the middle and rear rooms on the second floor, the windows overlooking the pretty grounds of the government building and the busy corner of Summit and Madison. Thanks to the efficiency and dispatch of the committees, the rooms were rented and furnished within a week. To these ladies we are greatly indebted, and not less to the business firms who, by the promptness with which they met generous pledges, facilitated the good work of the committee. Mr. Bamber, of the Lion store, furnished the matting laid, at a reduction of $10; Lampson Bros. contributing the same amount in cash, while Lasalle & Koch donated the dainty curtains which, with shades from Briggs & Leibius, furnish the windows. A large rug from Sterling's adds color and warmth to the front room. Here also is the piano loaned by Mr. Currier and amply protected by a bright, pretty spread, the gift of Neuhausel Bros. An easy lounge from Conant's stands between the windows, and the table is covered by a spread from A. J. Smith and holds a lamp from the Daudt Crockery Co. The chairs in this room are a former gift of Stolberg & Parks, to which is now added a beautiful easy chair from Mr. Fisher of the Gendron. Beneath a border of ornamented paper from Brown, Eager & Hull is a shelf donated and put up by Mr. Todd, for the clock furnished by Mr. Walcott. A picture from Butler's on Cherry street, bureau and stand from Draper & Nugent's, also full chamber sett from Powells, complete the list of gifts in furniture. The Blade Paper Co. donated 60 yards floor lining, the U. S. Baking Co. a generous supply of tea and coffee for the noon rest lunch. The Moreton Truck Co. donated valuable services in its line; Mr. Clarke, of Armstrong & Clarke, made a cash pledge which gladdens our hearts, while from Mr. Tait, Woodruff Bros., Cherry street, and Mr. Hudson, substantial favors were received.

Many others have contributed in money, whose kindness in giving and whose expressions of approval are encouragement and support in a work involving untold anxiety and responsibility and designed in its results to reach out into eternity.

The rooms are now open for the "noon rest," also will be ready for the Gospel service at 4 p. m. the coming Sunday.

That the Best . . .

Applies to everything, but is especially true of China. It's in the goods. The price we ask for them. The value is there. And when we occasionally hear some of our friends say that the set they bought of us ten or fifteen years ago is still as good as new, it proves to us the soundness of the policy to carry the best. Poor China gets worse, good China is always good.

IF YE DINNA KEN

What a Scotie is, Ye Dinna Ken Muckle,

But Nevertheless the Scoties Were Right in It Last Evening at the Curlers' Anniversary.

The Scoties are great fellows. They have two great weaknesses—they love a social time and they love Bobbie Burns, so an outsider can imagine what sort of an atmosphere surrounded the celebration of the twenty-second anniversary of the Burns curling club last evening. It was a grand time. In the first place, there was a game for the championship badge, the rinks made up as follows:

Reds—John Anderson, Capt. Chas. Hubbard, Wm. Frazer and O. P. Winfred, skip.

Blacks—Alex Kinnear, W. D. Jordan, J. D. Reid and J. C. Pike, skip.

The reds won with a score of 19 to 8.

A short business session followed with Judge Ritchie in the chair. O. Hall, jr., R. J. Gear, H. W. Arndt, Louis Volk and J. E. Taylor were admitted to membership. The president presented the championship badge to Mr. Winfred, the skip of the winning reds.

The members then seated themselves around the banquet board. Judge Pike spoke of Burns and bonnie Scotland and her kind and hospitable people. Judge Ritchie, who was born in Dumferline, Scotland, said that he was proud of the land of his birth, and proud, too, that he lived in the United States. By request he read Robert Ingersoll's tribute to the poet Burns.

Col. Faskins, the father of the club, spoke in a happy manner, Mr. Mack recited a poem, and other Scoties added to the entertainment in various ways.

It was a most enjoyable anniversary.

WILL MEET IN TOLEDO.

Western League to Convene in This City.

Evidently the Towns in the Ball Circuit Have Much Faith in Our Enterprising City.

It is very probable that a meeting of the Western base ball league will be held in this city the second week in March.

It will be quite a card for this city and the ball enthusiasts will see to it that the delegates have a splendid time.

The admirers of Toledo have not given up hope of having her join the circuit, although that hope is very slender. The plan on which the Western league is to be conducted is good, but the propositions made by people of this city to run a club here have all had such a large rope tied to them, that the citizens have had no confidence that anything would result from the several plans but wind.

It may be that at a meeting of the Western league here some substantial steps may be taken. The people will help the enterprise if placed in proper hands.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Mr. F. W. Le Sueur, of Defiance, is in Toledo to-day.

Rev. D. M. Fisk will preach at the East Side Congregational church to-morrow night.

The infirmary directors are out to the farm to-day, to hold their quarterly meeting.

All of the city I. O. O. F. lodges have an unusual number of sick members on the list at present.

The farmers' institute was continued at Waterville to-day. The sessions have been highly interesting.

FOR THE HOUSE OWNER.

Do you own a house? How many anxious days have you spent in planning it? Each room has come in for its share of your attention, and your wife has taken a special delight in studying the details and specifications of the map that the architect has given you. It looks well on paper, but will it suit when done? "Aye, there's the rub." Now, when you see a thing in reality, you may get a fair idea of how it suits. Take, for instance, a wall covered with tapestries, or silks, and a ceiling in fresco to correspond, would you care to see one? Also visible and tangible results a modern wall paper hangings. These effects, when combined with other accessories, are yours to admire at the spring opening of the stores of Allen & Parkhurst on March 1, Tuesday afternoon and evening. Their rooms have been entirely re-decorated and are well worth seeing. Come, and bring your friends.

KEEP THEM MOVING.

The winter stock of woollens at John Daiber's are moving out lively now on account of the deep cut rate, and they will keep going till all are gone, to make room for new spring stock.

The Baroness von Zuyllan, of Paris, has the finest stables in the world for her magnificent horses. Even those of the great czar himself do not equal them in magnificence. On Sunday afternoons she takes her tea in the stables, where down the center of the great building, a thick pile-carpet is placed leading up to the tea-room. The horses come up to the table for sugar from their mistress like pet dogs. The buildings cover over three acres of ground.

A PROMINENT MUSICIAN'S OPINION.

Mr. J. A. Demuth, (Professor of Music, Oberlin College):

The Whitney & Currier Co., Toledo, O.:

Gentlemen: Your favor asking how I like my Boardman & Gray piano is before me, and replying will say it is truly a magnificent instrument. In tone, touch, and action, it is the equal of any upright piano I have ever seen; while of its durability I have no fear whatever. Their record on that point would satisfy anyone. Before purchasing this instrument, I carefully examined first-class pianos in other cities, and also made comparisons in your warerooms with Steinway, Weber, Decker Bros. and Steck. I finally bought the Boardman & Gray, and am so well pleased that I would not exchange for any piano in your warerooms, unless it should be for one of your best grands.

Yours truly,
J. A. DEMUTH.

WOMEN AS ENTERTAINERS.

Women are natural entertainers, and it will be readily granted that in pleasing others they find much of the pleasantness of life, says Chamber's Journal. That many signally fail in this must be done to the fact that they have never thoughtfully and earnestly endeavored to cultivate the gift. It has often truly been said that a sermon, or a reading, or indeed any bit of work, must have a person behind it; then, and then only, will it tingle with that life which will be felt by the hearer and onlooker. So it must be entertaining. There must be a woman behind it charged with the electricity of sympathy and kindliness. She must be endowed with that capacity for total self-forgetfulness and that power of entering into the thoughts and interests of her guests which impart a rare charm to the hostess. Dora Greenwell's invalid sofa was a source of light and inspiration to many just through this divine faculty of bringing forth all that was best in the people who visited her. And it was the same quality that made George Eliot a most delightful person to meet.

Given a hostess with quick, bright sympathies, many evils which make our social circles a reproach are done away with She who has a true ideal of entertainment will not stoop to play at precedence with her neighbor entertainer, and will be content if she has made the world a little happier, even if her table appointments and the brilliancy of her gatherings are not quite equal to those of her friends. Some may hold that entertainments should be purely recreative, and that the tension should be relaxed where only a pleasant evening is aimed at. But we find that what elevates also truly recreates; and the two can exist perfectly together—nay, never exist well apart.

PECUNIARY RETURNS OF INVENTIONS.

An English paper gives some interesting statistics as to the pecuniary return of a few inventions. The stylographic pen for a while brought in £40,000 a year; the India rubber tips to pencils, £20,000; metal plates for protecting the soles and heels of boots brought in £250,000 in all; the roller skate, £200,000. A clergyman realized £400 a week by the invention of a toy; another toy, the return ball, brought in an income of £10,000; the "Dancing Jim Crow," £15,000 a year. The inventor of a copper cap for children's boots was able to leave his heirs £400,000, while Singer of sewing machine fame left at his death nearly £3,000,000.

The Markets To-day.

Dealers in wheat expected weak and lower markets to-day, and the first hour seemed to verify their expectations. New York opened at about yesterday's closing prices, continued steady and firm and closed at a loss of 1-8 on February and May wheat.

After New York closed at 12 o'clock Chicago had quite a cotillion on wheat. A suspicion that New York longs were trying to unload—an expectation of an increase in the visible on Monday, and some sensational cables of no earthly value in truthfulness, broke that market from 92 3-8c for May to 90 3-8c in a very little time.

One element of strength for wheat is the change in the weather. The temperature is not yet low, but a freeze so soon after general rains is not a safe feature for the crop.

Corn has ruled steady, and New York at close had gained 1-8c on February. Chicago closed a shade weaker.

English and French markets closed easier. Chicago closed 1 1-2c lower on May wheat and 1-8c on May corn. May oats 3-8c lower.

In Toledo there has been a large increase in the dealings in wheat and quite a decline in prices. It seems to have been a day for evening up all around. May wheat opened at 97 1-8c, Saturday close, gained 1-4c and became weak and closed at 95 7-8c, a loss of 1 1-4c. After 'Change there were sales of 100,000 bus at from 95 3-4 to 95 1-2c. July sold at 90 3-4c to 95 to 90 5-8c, a loss of 1 3-8c, and was lower to sell. On the call May sold at 97 1-8c to 97 1-4c, and July at 92 1-4c.

Cash wheat was not dealt in much, until after 'Change. No. 2 soft sold at 96 1-4c to 95 3-4c and at close about 94 3-4c was the price, a loss of 1 1-4c. After 'Change 9,000 bus were sold at 94 1-2c. No. 3 soft at 94c, and lower to sell. Rejected No. 1 at 88 1-2c. No. 2 at 86c. No. 2 white at 94 1-2c. All closing lower to sell.

Corn—No. 2 for May 43 1-8c; No. 3 at 39 1-2c; No. 4 at 38 to 37 1-2c. Rye—No. 2 at 86c. Nothing in oats.

Clover seed was well maintained, with a fair amount of business reported. On the call March sold at $5 85. After the call prince for cash at $5 90; February at $5 90; March at $5 85; No. 2 at $5 70.

Telephones, Editorial 355; Counting Room 102

TOLEDO, OHIO, FEBRUARY 27, 1892.

Pennsylvania democrats will urge Gov. Pattison as a presidential candidate.

Even a Dudley will not be able to boodleize Indiana this year. The Hoosiers will elect democratic electors.

As you go along the few months to come, keep one eye on the fight in New York and the other on Boies of Iowa.

The present legislature will be a record breaker for municipal taxation. Nearly every town, township and county wants something and Hamilton county is scheming for millions.

An organ boasting of "glorious reciprocity" and warning against "free-trade taint" in the same paragraph, betrays a strange neglect of dictionary education as well as of the first principles of political economy.

The principles which Grover Cleveland has championed, and upon which he has united the democratic party are those upon which the party in years past won its most notable victories. To abandon any part of the issue this year would be a fatal mistake.

Hist! d'ye mind? the Boston Reform Club is talking of a "mugwump" convention early in the spring to nominate candidates for the presidential ticket of '92. George William Curtis says it will be the proper way to treat the republican party, which has scorned their protests and sneered at their smallness in strength and numbers. Go ahead, G. W., you have our permission.

There should be conservative action in congress on the coinage question. Common ground should be found for democrats to meet and legislate well. The ancient democratic advocacy of bimetalism is as forceful to-day as ever, but the democratic demand should be for an honest dollar every day in the year. Gold and silver, plenty of it, free coinage, but every dollar should be worth one hundred cents. Nothing more is demanded, nothing less is democratic.

It cannot conduce to heartiness in giving to the famine-stricken sufferers in Russia to know that the systematic robbing of the peasantry by the government is the chief cause of the poverty and starvation; and that, while contributions are being hurried forward, the despot is issuing mandates to still further circumscribe the rights of his oppressed people. It is not to discourage generosity, that it is said—to feed the Czar's oppressed subjects is to help him maintain his despotism, and continue his persecutions.

PATRIOTISM IN THE SCHOOLS.

Minneapolis schools have a list of twenty-four days when the flag shall float over them, and the days themselves are remembered by public ceremony. To those commonly observed are added not only the birthdays of Longfellow, Lowell and Whittier, but Forefathers' day, the surrender at Appomatax, battle of Lexington, Washington's inauguration day, discovery of the falls of St. Anthony, discovery of America, surrender of Cornwallis, admission of Minnesota into the union, battles of Bunker Hill and Gettysburg and the engagement between the Monitor and Merrimac. The idea is an excellent one, not new at all, as it is carried out in all our public schools to some extent. The addition of state and local anniversaries is the feature which calls attention. There is no better way to inculcate lessons of patriotism and fix historic dates in mind. It could be overdone, to be sure, but there is little danger.

BATTLE FLAGS.

Why return the Mexican battle flags? They are our trophies, though the warlike sentiment they stand for is, happily, passed away. It would be a graceful and glorious thing to do to build at the capital a beautiful monument to Peace and put within it the mingled battle flags of the North and South, and with them the trophies of the revolution and the Mexican war. The battle flags that Napoleon and his armies captured are grouped about his sarcophagus under the dome of the Church of the Invalides. But they seem unhappy and unchristian reminders, in the shadow of the tomb.

What particular significance can returned flags have to the people from which they were taken? The reminiscences awakened can not be altogether pleasant ones. Let us build a Temple of Peace and amid its furnishings place the battle trophies of the united nation—an object lesson for coming generations, an inciter to patriotism and an earnest for peace and the brotherhood of humanity.

THOUGHT WAVES.

Somebody alluded to "the new science of mind telegraphy" the other day. As old as the gone-to-dust Egyptian astrologers, as old as the Bible, the ancient philosophers and the first lovers. The primeval inhabitant remembers how, when he was a child, his mother received impressions of the guest who was on his way to visit them, and made preparation accordingly, and was rarely mistaken. Writers could add to the vast volumes of experiences in this line, as could those who read a great deal of contemporary periodical literature.

This was noted in the magazines of December last, so many of them had disquisitions on poetry and poets it seemed almost that a thought wave had swept over the literary world. The Arena gave several pages to A North American Indian Epic, "The League of the Iroquois," by Benjamin Hathaway. Mr. Hathaway is a pioneer of Michigan and his studies of Indian character are taken from real life. The critic says the volume would have been a cheer and comfort to Helen Hunt Jackson, could she have lived to see it, and finds some descriptive verses "that deserve to rank with the best poetry of Wordsworth or Lowell or any other poet in the English language."

Harper's discoursed at length, of the activity of western poets, and cited examples. Mr. Howells thinks the eastern fields of poetic thought need fertilizers and a new system of cultivation, and even then "the western product will have its own flavor." The "Contributors' Club" of the Atlantic has a poetic review with conclusions and Scribner's an essay on the alleged doctrine of the poetic faculty making brave defense of the modern writers. Many other periodicals of that month had thought drifting in the same channel and, withal, an unusual amount of good poetry was found on the contributors' pages. Curious ones will find this feature even in the newspapers of the day. Some scientists account for crime epidemics by the theory modern philosopher teaches "think good thoughts if you would help the world to grow better." Deeds speak louder than words no doubt, but the influence of thought that has no audible or tangible manifestation, we are not yet able to calculate.

GRIFFIN'S JUDICIAL GERRYMANDER.

The Sandusky Register objects to the Griffin judicial gerrymander upon grounds suggested by the Bee—that the republicans of some of the outside counties will be disfranchised to satisfy the selfishness of the republican partisans of Toledo who wear the Griffin collar. The bill requires a two-thirds vote to secure its passage, and there ought to be patriotism enough in the legislature to defeat such bold, bald, bad partisanship. The present district is so close politically that both parties are compelled to nominate good men. We are thus generally assured of the election of good judges.

The Bee can not be accused of selfish partisanship in opposing this bill. It is well known that the Griffin bill would retire the democratic judges of Lucas county. A revengeful spirit would impel the Bee to favor the bill because one of the democratic judges within the past year rendered a decision upon the bench so broad and so uncalled for, as to throw elsewhere more than two thousand dollars worth of advertising that rightfully belonged to the Bee office. Notwithstanding that exhibition upon the bench, the Bee opposes the bill that would retire this judge. There is principle involved in this question and the Bee is so broadly and so soundly democratic that it can rise above personal matters and advocate whatever is best for the people, because what is good for the people must be good for the democratic party. That's the kind of democracy this Bee is made of, and it would be well if the same kind of rock-bottom material animated all democrats, even those who are temporarily elevated to the bench.

The Griffin bill means that the judiciary of Lucas county shall be controlled by ward politics, and the more tricky the methods the more sure the results for the manipulators of ward and bum politics. Lucas county cannot afford to descend to such methods as the Griffin bill contemplates, and all good citizens, republicans and democrats, should unite in demanding that the high standard of our common pleas judiciary shall be maintained. Emphasize your demand by opposing the Griffin bill.

Tally One for Campbell.

Some of the eastern papers are speaking favorably of ex-Governor Campbell as a candidate for president on the democratic ticket. There is no man whom the democracy of Ohio would rally around with more vim and vigor than Mr. Campbell and if he should be the nominee he would carry the state by 25,000 majority. He would enthuse the young men of the party and the moss backs would turn out to vote for him to a man. Hurrah for Campbell, say we.—Celina Standard.

He Doesn't Exist.

If there be one single workman in the United States whose wages have been raised one cent by the McKinley law he should make haste to communicate with the chairman of the house committee on manufactures at Washington, as that committee has been instructed to hunt for him in connection with its investigation of the "sweating system."—Chicago Globe.

Good for Georgia.

Senator Colquitt, like Ingalls, regards "honesty, virtue and purity" as an "irridescent dream." The people of Georgia, however, will be loth to discard honesty, virtue and purity, even at the bidding of their senior senator.—Atlanta Journal.

"The Trolley Is Off."

Somehow the reciprocity business is not progressing so smoothly as it was before the Plumed Knight took in his plume, and yet we used to be told that Benjamin Harrison was the real power behind the reciprocity throne.—Boston Herald.

There is a growing conviction that while Jerry Simpson may have less in his boots than many of his associates in congress, he has more in his head.—Chicago Times.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

The Brown Tube Wire Gun Does All That Is Claimed for It.

Birdsboro, Pa., Feb. 27.—A test of the Brown segmental tube wire gun, made here yesterday, produced a pressure of more than 53,000 pounds to the square inch in the cylinder made to represent the powder chamber of the gun, and the cylinder not only withstood this enormous pressure, but afterwards showed not the slightest traces of having been subjected to it.

The test was made under government auspices and the strength of the Brown system of wire gun manufacture has been definitely and conclusively settled by the experiment.

The Brown system of gun manufacture may revolutionize the making of heavy ordinance.

QUITE A FAILURE.

New York, Feb. 27.—Schedules in the assignment of Joseph W. Carroll, manufacturers of advertising novelties at 78 Duane street, show liabilities of $119,174; nominal assets, $32,843; actual assets, $20,259.

RUSSIA MOVES SLOWLY.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 27.—The St. Petersburg Viedomosti says that Russia has postponed a decision as to proposed commercial treaties in order to be able to judge, before acting, the effect of the treatise and tariffs recently adopted by other nations, and also to give her own tariff a fair trial.

TROUBLE AHEAD.

New York, Feb. 27.—A special cable dispatch to the Herald from Rio Janeiro says there is the greatest uneasiness throughout the republic. It is reported that at present there is no less than 2,500 men under arms who are opposed to the government.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Prince Bismarck is fond of practicing with the revolver.

Ferdinand Ward's term of imprisonment will expire shortly.

Miss Frances E. Willard, president of the W. C. T. U., will have a summer cottage built at Mount Desert.

It will be a great pleasure to the friends of John G. Whittier to hear that he is better and slowly convalescing from a second attack of the "grip."

Mr. R. F. Foster is the American who is expected to lecture on whist in London. There seems an apparent paradox in whist lectures unless they might be as quiet as those Mrs. Candle lent her name to, which have an audience of one only.

William P. Ellison, who was one of the most active promoters of the Missouri Pacific railway, the first road built west of the Mississippi, did not himself take a ride on a railroad train until one day last week, when he journeyed from the country town where he lives into St. Louis.

The doctor has long been an active member of the riksdag and the leader of a part of the center. He is an excellent speaker and, being a trained journalist, is one of the strongest and most logical debaters in the

TOLEDO'S SERIOUS CONDITION.

No law which is bad for business men in the conduct of business can be wise for a city in the management of its affairs. The first requisite of success for the individual who is in debt, is that he shall economize, watch, and reduce his indebtedness as rapidly as he can. It is recognized as a danger, and the man who is a persistent borrower, never reducing, but always increasing his debts, is pointed out as being on the road to ruin.

Every city, county and state have become borrowers of money, and have issued their bonds as if they thereby became of added importance in the eyes of the great world.

The debt of a city is a mortgage upon every home within her boundaries. This is not figurative, but the literal truth. Let the bonds be issued for whatever purpose, be it an armory, a market house, a park, a bridge, or anything else, the moment they have passed into the hands of a purchaser, they have become a real estate mortgage upon every foot of ground in the city.

For ten years past there has been a good market for bonds. New England and New York banks have had to go beyond their own borders to find investments. City bonds have been easy to find, the interest was readily collected, and the rate much better than money could be loaned for at home.

This has given city authorities full encouragement to go ahead with every form of improvement and expansion, pay for these by selling bonds, and then trusting to luck when the day of payment should arrive.

In a city like Toledo men with axes to grind drift into offices either in person or by proxy. The boomer is ready for all and every kind of public improvement that will enable him to unload. He can afford to do hard work to get a man of his own kind into the council.

The men who have paving material to sell are desirous of street improvements that shall make a demand for their wares, and are not slow in forcing themselves into places where they can help themselves.

The men who make money out of paving contracts take care that their men shall be in places of importance, and the poor devil of a taxpayer, who has no axe to grind, but upon whom the burden falls, often fancies that he has done a very laudable thing when he has worked hard at the polls to elect these very men, whose sole purpose is selfish and mercenary.

The city of Toledo has reached a point where every taxpayer should seriously ask himself what he is going to do about it. This is not a question of party politics, and it is shame that it should ever be made one. It is not a question of pipe-line. It is simply a question of paying off the mortgages on our homes. We are worse than fools to go on adding to this debt and leaving it for our children to find a way out, or be crushed by it.

There are two forms of indebtedness here:

Our general indebtedness for general city affairs and improvements, and our special street improvement debt. It is of the general indebtedness I am going to speak here.

On the first day of January, 1891, this was $3,526,922.

And the interest to be paid upon this during the year was the enormous sum of $208,482.

This indebtedness was so great in proportion to our taxable valuation, that our bonds could not be legally purchased by some of the money loaning states east of us, and which fact was a damage to us. One would think that with such a load upon our backs the year 1891 would have been given up to devising means to reduce our debt and our burden of interest.

Just look at this interest again; $208,482 to be paid in one single year! See the rates we are paying. Of our $3,526,922 debt then existing we paid

8 per cent. interest on........	$ 997,000
7 3-10 per cent. interest on....	432,000
6 per cent. interest on........	160,000
5 per cent. interest on........	685,000
4 1-2 per cent. interest on....	745,922
4 per cent. interest on........	507,000
	$3,526,922

This table of interest shows that some of this indebtedness is a heritage to us from former rulers, but there was in that all the more lesson of caution.

What did our authorities do to reduce this burden in the year 1891?

THEY INCREASED THE DEBT some $755,350, so that on January 1, '92, our indebtedness (not including bonds issued for street improvements) was $4,190,272.

We paid off $92,000, falling due, by giving new notes!

The man who imagines that the people who suffer from this debt are the rich, deceives himself. The rich can be trusted to care for themselves. The mechanic who, when he paid his taxes last December, found them almost doubled, is the one who suffers most. Valuations had to be boomed to make our bonds sell better. The little home assessed at $400 for 1890 was boomed to $750 in '91, and will stay there for these ten years. The tax bill was increased from $11.60 to $19.50. I am giving no imaginary case.

What does $8 mean to a laboring man? It means that he had to give four or five days extra of his hard labor to pay his extra taxes! It means that his family is denied the comforts that $8 would buy because of this public mortgage on his home. It means that public office is a private snap among the men who run for office, and by his carelessness at the caucus, his lack of independence at the polls, he shuts his eyes lest he may see the hand that was picking his pockets of eight hard-earned dollars. To a man better situated it is $80, to another $800, but almost always these amounts can be added to rents so that the burden will fall on the poorer man after all.

Taxpayers of Toledo, look at the calibre and business qualifications of the men who have been piling this debt on you for the past ten years. Now and then a good man secures a position in the council, but he is made to feel very lonesome. He is surrounded by men, placed there by your votes, whose whole gospel of politics is,

A public office is a private snap.

WM. H. MAHER.

GIDEON MARSH.

He is Prospering in Business in Buenos Ayres.

Philadelphia, Feb. 27.—Ex-Judge F. Carroll Brewster, of this city, who arrived in New York yesterday from the West Indies on the steamer Advance, informed a reporter here that he learned from an authentic source while on his trip that Gideon W. Marsh, the fugitive president of the defunct Keystone National bank, whose affairs are still subject for earnest investigation, is in Buenos Ayres, where he is engaged in business and reported to be doing well. Judge Brewster was informed that while Marsh is going under an assumed name it is generally known there who he is, and that no especial pains are taken by him

PUMPING NATURAL GAS

Not a Commercial Success, Says an Authority

In the Person of Wm. H. Worthen, of Brooklyn, Who Writes B. A. Stevens on the Subject.

Mr. B. A. Stevens, who has not had much faith in the proposed plan of pumping natural gas, addressed a letter to the editor of Engineering, who answered that if any man in the country knew anything about pumping natural gas that man would be Wm. H. Worthen, of the firm of Guild & Garrison, Brooklyn, builders of steam pumps, vacum, air and circulating pumps, hydraulic pumps, air compressors, etc., on a large scale.

Mr. Worthen is a well known authority not only in this country but in Europe. In answer to Mr. Stevens' letter he said:

Dear Sir: Your esteemed favor of the 22d inst., in reference to pumping natural gas through a pipe line 40 miles long, has been received.

The pumping of gas through a pipe line is practicable, and has been done to a limited extent. I am not aware, however, that it has been done upon so large a scale as you have in mind. I understand that some time ago, some of the natural gas companies investigated the subject, and found that the pumping of natural gas long distances could not be made a commercial success.

Very truly yours,
WM. H. WORTHEN.

Mr. Stevens expects to hear from the Iron Age and other mechanical and scientific authorities.

The Mayor's Gas Committee Has Another Day's Outing in the Field—Results of the Day's Investigation—Gas, Politics and Mud Mixed to Suit—A Resume.

It was a long weary day's work that the Mayor's gas investigating committee performed in the Bloom township field yesterday. All the members of the committee were on board when the T., C. & C. train pulled out for Cygnet yesterday morning.

The committee has had a variety of weather during this investigation, but the experiences of yesterday eclipses the record, and Bloom township mud was unanimously voted the palm for depth, tenacity and general dirtiness.

H. S. Walbridge and F. B. Losee have tried hard to make a town out of Cygnet, but Providence has evidently had other designs for that tract of floating real estate.

When Mayor Emmick and F. T. Lane had managed to borrow all the rubber boots and oil skins in the hamlet, the carriages were waiting and the word was Bloom Center.

"I'd give a hundred dollars for a kodak," remarked W. H. Tucker, as Mr. Lane emerged from a livery stable in a long oil skin tied around the waist with a rope.

"You ought to see the mayor," laughed Mr. Lane, when the laugh which greeted his appearance had subsided.

It was only a mile to the first well, but the horses, although sturdy and swift, could make but little progress in that sea of mud. It would cling and cake around the wheel until, from hub to rim, it was one round solid whole.

As on the two former occasions, Manager Heston piloted the delegation, and he was assisted in the work of gauging and measuring by Superintendent O'Herron and Field Superintendent Dan Harrington.

The committee as a whole was not favorably impressed with the wells or field visited yesterday. The wells, as will be seen by the subjoined tables, are light in pressure and small in capacity. Several of them are newly drilled in and the result cannot have a tendency to make the trustees spend much more money in that section. A number of the wells show oil in considerable quantities, and it seemed to be the opinion that where there is oil pumps would be but of little utility.

Gauging the Wells.

The first well struck was City No. 40. It is located on the Loe farm, about a mile west of Cygnet. It stands in the center of a circle of oil wells, and while is is remarkably free of oil it will be strange if it does not turn an oiler sooner or later. It is a newly leased well, and considering the location is one of the best wells owned by the city. Reference to the tables will show the decrease in output and pressure. No. 40 was drilled in for an oil well, and after being allowed to blow free for a length of time, was leased to the city as a gasser.

No. 37 on the Milburn farm was the next inspected. It was drilled in last fall, and is considerable of a well compared with others seen. The city owns 20 acres, or rather the gas rights of the 20 acres, on which the well is located. Before being purchased by the city last year, some miscreant set it on fire, and it was with difficulty closed down. It burned for eight months, but is still somewhat of a gasser, having a capacity of 1,266,000 feet.

The Soleleather well, City No. 36, of which so much has been heard, was purchased within the year. It is in the oil belt, and still it does not show much oil. The city owns oil and gas rights in 10 acres here.

The Heiser well (No. 28) is located on a tract of 60 acres owned by the city. It is one of Wysbrod's bargains, and not much of a bargain, either. It has a capacity of 1,570,000 as compared with 3,200,000 when purchased. It is perfectly dry, or would be if cleaned out regularly.

The city owns 80 acres of the Eckelberger farm, and has three light but dry wells on it. All show a little oil or water, but this is largely due to the fact that the wells are not cleaned out often enough. All are light in the matter of output, but the rock pressure is much better than in the Stuartville field.

Just a Little Politics.

The committee had worked its way close to Jersey City, and as dinner was to be ready there at noon it was decided to postpone the inspection of other wells until after dining. Then it was necessary to change horses, as those we had been using since the morning were nearly played out. There were 16 wells on Manager Heston's program to be inspected, but owing to the utter impassibility of some of the roads this was found impossible.

The hungry gas hunters did justice to an excellent dinner, and after dining adjourned to the office for a smoke and a chat with the proprietor, Herr Van Blancom, an old Toledoan, by the way, and one of the best known men in the country.

"It's a wonder you didn't make a strike in oil—you have lived here so long," Mr. Burdick remarked to him.

"Well, I might have; but lost opportunities, you know, won't come back."

"And then you really did have a chance to go in?"

"Chance? Why, I owned half the country around here, and sold it for a song, just before oil was found. I sold out to Palmer and those fellows, and made them all rich."

"You must have felt as mean as I did when I nominated Flickinger," Mr. Romeis gravely said.

The genial ex-mayor joined as heartily as any in the roar of laughter which greeted this sally.

"Did Flick really sell you out, Mr. Romeis?" some one asked.

"Sell me out? Well, I should say he did. All that day in the convention he was scared half to death, and kept constantly saying, 'Keep near me, Jacob. Don't desert me.' Sell me out? Well, I should say he did."

The conversation naturally turned on the Sherman-Foraker contest, and the status of the gas wells was entirely forgotten until 10 or 15 minutes later, when the carriages were announced.

The experiences of the afternoon were somewhat similar to those of the morning. Two wells on the Rainsberger tract were inspected. They are comparatively new—one having been drilled in but a week ago. The city owns 80 acres here, and it appears to be pretty good gas territory, although, as in the case of many of the others, there were plenty of indications of oil.

Eleven of the sixteen wells were finally inspected, and as it was now getting on toward train time, it was decided to head the horses for Cygnet. It was a memorable trip, but more of it later on.

The Day's Work Condensed.

As has been stated above, the majority of the wells examined yesterday have been either drilled in or purchased by the city within three or four months, so that it is hard to make anything like accurate comparisons. The figures, as given in these tables, have been secured from actual measurement by the committee and from Manager Heston. That the pressure fluctuates will be seen from the fact that on the day of our first visit to the field the pressure in East Toledo was 35 pounds and in the field 87 1-2 pounds. Yesterday morning it was 72 in East To-tables will give some idea of the work of yesterday:

44	1,200,000	700,000
45	990,000	500,000

The four last wells on the above list have been but recently drilled in, and the figures as given the Bee by Manager Heston were largely from memory. The figures are evidently correct, for there has been but little time in which the capacity could diminish much.

Pressure Compared.

No. Well.	Pressure Formerly in Pounds.	Pressure Now in Pounds.
28	230	82

37	165	102
40	150	102
41	165	100
44	178	106
45	125	100

It will be seen from the above table that the decrease has not been near so marked as in the other fields that have been visited. The former average is fully 50 per cent. less, however, than in the first fields examined.

Superintendent O'Herron explains this by saying that in the Stuartville and other fields where the pressure fell from 350 pounds to 100 the rock is much more porous and gives out the gas much more rapidly. In the Stuartville field the minute pressure is to the rock pressure as 100 to 125.

"In almost all the wells examined today," Mr. O'Herron said to a Bee last evening, "the rock pressure is over 200 pounds. The wells are new and the rock is not nearly so porous as in the Van Buren field. The capacity of the wells are much smaller than those in the former field."

The committee was to have visited Perry township where the high pressure territory is said to be located, but circumstances would not permit and consequently the contemplated trip has been indefinitely postponed.

"We ought to try and visit Perry township," Mr. Burdick said to Mayor Emmick. "It is of the utmost importance that we find out something about the pressure there."

"What do you know of the pressure in that field?" Mr. O'Herron was asked.

"The pressure is over 200 pounds. We have one well there which shows over that. The output is rather light and none will figure above those you have seen today."

Only an Incident.

One thing must be said of Cygnet and Jerry City—their liveries turn out excellent horses, but it requires animals of supernatural strength and endurance for those roads. The horses we had taken at Cygnet in the morning were changed at Jerry City. It was believed that the distance of five miles between the well last visited and Cygnet could be made in an hour and a half. The teams crawled along at a slow walk and were oftener scrambling along in the ditch than on the road. So slow was the progress that watches were consulted every few minutes lest the train home would slip by.

"Ain't this simply horrible," his honor remarked to Mr. Lane, as the horses wallowed in a more than usual deep slough.

"Yes, and we have but 20 minutes to make that train," replied Mr. Lane anxiously, as he replaced the watch which he had been looking at every few minutes since we left Jerry City.

"That team is about played out," the mayor sighed. The mayor may not be a gas expert, but he is somewhat of a prophet. The words were hardly uttered when the tired horses stopped dead short and absolutely refused to budge. They did not balk nor were they stuck. They were, as the mayor said, simply played.

It was death to jump, and to remain was to miss the train.

"I have an engagement in Toledo tonight," said Mr. Lane, with a look of determination in his eye, "and I must get there. Good-by."

And he jumped. No, he didn't go quite out of sight, though the mayor made some remark to that effect as he looked down over the side of the vehicle at the victim of the mud. Then his honor jumped.

It is well, perhaps, to draw the veil here.

"You tell my friends that I died bravely while doing my duty," his honor said, as he liberated one leg, and in doing so drove the other deeper.

"Have you any word to send to your friends, Mr. Lane?"

But that agile gentleman was not to be seen.

"We've got here just the same," Mr. Emmick wearily remarked as we joined the others at Uncle John's, later.

It was an awful experience, and after looking the matter carefully over it was decided that too many precious lives were at stake to tempt Providence by another visit to the city's gas field.

The committee, at least part of it, will go to Pittsburg next week, and Cygnet is not much worse than the Smoky City.

Results Totalized.

A computation of the results of the investigation so far, with comparisons of pressure and volume, will be found interesting for future reference:

vs.
George Foerch and others, Defendants.

In court of common pleas of Lucas county, Ohio.

George Foerch, whose place of residence is unknown, and Rosina Shulz, residing in the town of Grab, District Backnaug, in the Kingdom of Wurtemberg in Germany, and Frederick George Schulz, who resides in the town of Wohlhauen, Canton Luzern, in Switzerland, will take notice that on the 29th day of January, 1892, John Schulz filed his petition in the court of common pleas in and for Lucas county, Ohio, against them and Lizzie Beese, Chas. Beese and Henry Spielbusch, as executor, averring and charging therein that Catharine Foerch died at Toledo, Ohio, on January 11th, 1892, and that on the 16th day of January, 1892, a certain paper, dated August 5th, 1889, pretending to be the last will of said Catharine Foerch, deceased, was admitted to probate in the probate court of Lucas county, as her last will; that Henry Spielbusch was qualified as executor of said pretended will, but that said paper writing was not the last will of said deceased, and plaintiff prays that an issue be made up as to whether said paper is the last will of Catharine Foerch, deceased; that the same be set aside and for other relief. Said parties are required to answer on or before the third Saturday after 5th of March, A. D., 1892.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Only a little dust—
So small that a rose might hide it;
And I trust in God—or I try to trust,
When I kneel in dark beside it.

I kneel in the dark and say:
I only dream that I weep;
She would not leave me and go away—
She has only fallen asleep.

Fallen asleep, as oft
She climbed to my heart to rest,
Her white arms twining my neck as soft
As down on a dove's sweet breast.

Tenderly—unawares,
Sleep came in the waning light
And kissed her there on the twilight stairs
That lead to the morning light.

And that she will wake I know,
And smile at a grief like this;
It could not be she would leave me so,
With never a good-night kiss.

So I kneel in the dark and say:
I only dream that I weep;
She would not leave me and go away—
She has only fallen asleep.

LIKE A ROARING LION

Will the Month of March Make Its Approach.

A Blizzard in the West and Storms in the East.

Next Month Will be Very Disagreeable if Professor Foster Has Properly Calculated What is Coming.

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 27.—Last week I gave forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from 22d to 27th and the cool wave from 25th to 29.

The next storm wave will be due to reach the Pacific coast about February 28th, cross the Rocky mountains by the close of the 29th, the great central valleys from March 1 to 3, and the eastern states about the 4th.

This storm will have the greatest force west of the Missouri river and will probably cause a blizzard in Montana February 29th and a storm of considerable force further southeast about March 1st. Rough weather may be expected throughout the Missouri valley about March 2d.

This storm will lose force as it enters the eastern states about March 3d and 4th, but the storm preceding it will be of considerable force in the northeastern states on February 29th.

The cool wave moving eastward will cross the Pacific slope and the western mountains by the close of March 1st, the great central valleys about March 3d and the eastern states about March 5th.

I have often stated and will repeat that very severe storms will occur on this continent during March. Western Europe has experienced the greatest storms of the century during the past six months, and it is almost impossible for this country not to go through the same experience during the next six months.

Even orthodox scientists have given warning of the great disturbances near at hand, because of the great sun-spots and other remarkable disturbances now apparent on the sun. Spots on the sun, they declare, cause an increase in the force of our earth storms through the agency of the electrical forces.

They also declare that the perihelion of Jupiter causes a maximum of sun-spots and an increase in the auroral displays. All this indicates that the men who have posed as the leaders in scientific research are being forced to acknowledge the influence of the planets on our earth, and that electricity is the medium.

But in claiming that sunspots cause auroras and other earth disturbances, and that the perihelia of the planets cause sunspots, these great scientists wholly disregard cause and effects, disregard all the laws of electricity and magnetism.

Jupiter is now about forty millions of miles nearer the sun than it was six years ago, and, if we follow the laws of electricity, that would increase the electrical forces of the sun and earth, which in turn would increase the evaporation and cloudiness on the sun thereby preventing sunspots; therefore the perihelia of the planets cannot cause sunspots and the sunspots cannot cause earth disturbances.

Sunspots must necessarily be of exactly the same nature as our high barometers, and our cold waves, causing large areas of clear weather, corresponding to the large dark spots on the sun.

The faculae, or bright spots on the sun are the same as our low barometers where we have densely cloudy weather. Whatever causes our storm centers, our high and low barometers, our cold waves also cause the sunspots, and I assert without fear of successful contradiction, that it is the equinox of Jupiter and not his perihelion that causes the increase of auroras and sunspots.

On the night of February 13, when the great aurora lighted up the northern heavens—also the regions of the south pole, no doubt, although we have no news from that part of the earth—Jupiter was within two degrees of his equinox while he was 14 degrees from his perihelion, therefore the electric tension of the sun was very great and only needed an outlet in order to shock or electrify the whole solar system.

The electrifying event occurred on the 13th, when Venus passed the earth's equator and the earth passed the equator of Mars. Anyone who has studied the nature of electrical currents in connection with revolving globes, will readily see the logic in these statements.

But the difficulty in the way of orthodox scientists is that they still consider the sun as a burning body, instead of, as it really is, a body very much like the earth, with its seas, continents, mountains, valleys, clouds and storms, all affected by the very same laws and in the same manner as are the various parts of our earth.

Knowing of the approach of the equinoxes of Saturn and Jupiter, I gave warning nearly a year ago that 1892 would be a year of great storms all around the earth, and that these great disturbances would reach their maximum force in the four months from March 1 to June 30.

Since the great auroral display February 13, orthodox scientists are predicting the same increase of disturbances that I did a year ago.

Spots on the sun and storms all around the earth have been increasing for six months past at least, and they will continue to increase for at least six months to come. But both sun spots and earth storms are effects of the same cause. The planets and sun electrify each other just as revolving magnets in the electro-dynamo machine affect each other.

The time appears to be rapidly approaching when the electrical theory of force in the universe will take the places of the nebular and heat theories, and electro-meteorology dethrone the chaotic world of chance ideas that have long ruled in the weather bureau of the United States.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION.

Professor Demmon Opens the Second Series

With a Lecture on "More's Utopia"—The Largest Audience Was Out Last Night—Next Lecture on Thursday Night.

The University Extension lectures have all been well attended, but the banner audience so far assembled last night to hear Prof. Isaac N. Demmon, of the Michigan university, deliver the first in a course of six lectures which he will give on "Masterpieces of English Literature."

The subject last night was "More's Utopia: A Dream of the New Learning." Prof. Demmon has a good voice, clear enunciation and impressive manner. He indulges in no oratorical flights, but so perfectly does he understand his subject, so interested is he in it, that he has no difficulty in putting his audience in thorough sympathy with him. The first question to be considered is what books to study, and the second is how to study them. Ruskin divides books into two classes—books of the hour and books of all time. There are both good and bad books that endure only for a time, and books good and bad that last forever. Books of the hour, descriptive books, books of travel, humorous books, are many of them good, and can be read with profit, but preference is given to the "masterpieces" that never die. To study one of these the reader must be attracted by the work, must love the author. To study with benefit we must seek to find the author's opinions, not to form our own.

In studying the Utopia we must consider, first, circumstances under which the work was produced; second, the character and mind of the author; third, the matter or doctrine of the book; fourth, the rhetorical excellencies and defects of the work; fifth, comparison with other works of its class; sixth, the influence of the book on the world.

The speaker mentioned some of More's excellent traits of character, his kindliness, consideration for the feelings of others, as an instance of which he spoke of More's marriage, as told by himself to his son-in-law. He numbered among his acquaintances a gentleman who had three daughters, to the younger and fairer of whom he was much attracted and wished to make her his wife. But knowing the awkward position in which this would place the elder sister, he transferred his affections to her and married her, afterward educating her in music and letters, a privilege seldom enjoyed by women of that age.

More's sense of humor was also very keen. Even when ascending the scaffold, he asked the executioner to assist him, remarking, "as to the coming down, that will take care of itself." He had great prophetic insight. The Utopia was not merely fanciful, as some have declared, but written with a motive. More saw the necessity for higher education, better sanitation, punishment graded to suit the offense, shorter hours of labor, and greater religious toleration. The purpose of the Utopia was reform, social, intellectual, moral, and this was the purpose of the man's whole life.

Those who listened to the lecture last night will read the Utopia with a new interest, because they have gained a clearer insight into the character of the author, and this carries out Prof. Demmon's theory that to study a work with benefit there must be a strong attraction. Ambition for knowledge only will not do; love alone receives a message.

At the close of the lecture the usual study hour was held, a large number remaining for these exercises.

The next lecture will be held on Thursday evening, March 3. Prof. Demmon cannot be present on next Friday evening, so the lecture will be one night earlier. The subject for the second lecture is Bacon's Essays: A Code of Practical Morals.

The will of Martha Dunlap, of Rochester, admitted to probate eight years ago, devised an estate of $100,000 to D. W. Powers, in trust to be divided among the charitable and benevolent institutions of Rochester on the death of her two sisters. They died four years ago. Mr. Powers has always given sums to charities, and he now claims that these gifts, while under his name, were really from the Dunlap estate and that it has nearly all been distributed. Managers of local charities talk of suing Mr. Powers.

How Is That for a New Name for Our Expanding Circle?

Poor Misguided Woman — Her "Wants and Needs" and Her Suicidal Demands—Some Good Letters.

ON AN OLD SONG.

Little snatch of ancient song,
What has made thee live so long?
Flying on thy wings of rhyme
Lightly down the depths of time,
Telling nothing strange or rare,
Scarce a thought or image there,
Nothing but the old, old tale
Of a hapless lover's wail;
Offspring of an idle hour,
Whence has come thy lasting power?
By what turn of rhythm or phrase,
By what subtle, careless grace,
Can thy music charm our ears,
After full three hundred years?

Little song, since thou wert born,
In the Reformation morn,
How much great has passed away,
Shattered or by slow decay,
Stately piles in ruins crumbled,
Lordly houses lost and humbled,
Thrones and realms in darkness hurled,
Noble flags for ever furled,
Wisest schemes by statesmen spun,
Time has seen them one by one
Like the leaves of autumn fall—
A little song outlives them all.
—Becky.

Saved Again.

Again are women, this time Ohio women, saved from the dreadful fate towards which they were rushing blindly and willingly. Did you read the reasons given by the state solons at Columbus, why it would not be wise or expedient to grant them the right of school suffrage? They (the reasons) are amusing to a high degree. A man named Bloch, grandiloquently boo-ooed and bow-owed about being "proud of woman who had earned for herself a place in the annals of the world's history for untold generations yet unborn"—he dilated upon his "admiration for the gentler sex," and "opposed the bill upon the grounds of expediency, propriety, and of a broad and enlightened humanity." He recognized the "exalted position," the "influence of transcendent magnitude," the "guiding star to a glorious destiny," and "in her refining presence the subtlest charm; the inspiring source of the sculptor's chisel, the artist's brush, the poet's muse and the composer's melody; her glorious deeds emblazon the pages of history"—and are these the reasons she cannot have a voice in making laws for the schools where her sex predominates as instructors and her children are taught and tortured, one or both? No, oh, no; this is what the transcriber in the Ohio house of representatives called "the most polished rhetorical effort" heard in the hall for many a day, but here's the "argumentative" point. Because woman is such a transcendent, unapproachable, worshiped, idolized, uplifted, crowned and sceptered creature, she will be utterly debased if she shall "get down into the mud and soil of the political field" (where her husband and father and brothers and sons wallow). Then, in going out of the hall to wipe the oratorical perspiration from his brow, he stumbled over a scrub woman who pays more tax on her cabin than he does on his mansion, pro rata, and who supports a family of children and sends them to the public schools.

Oh, exalted, angelic, guarded, protected, petted, feted, luxurious angel, how might you despoil your robes and smut your wings if it were not for these guardians of yours who reach up out of the "mud and dirt" of the school question with their begrimed hands to warn you.

There was not a woman interested in the presenting of the petition that couldn't have made a better speech against the bill, if she had tried, than was made by any man of the opposition on the floor. And burlesque like this goes on record as a "polished rhetorical effort." Oh, woman, vote or no vote, your day of vengeance is at hand. What fun to fling back such cheap taffy into the teeth of its compounder and ask him, please, for a word of argument. The dirtiness of school boards doesn't go. We know some decent men who belong to them. It is not to be denied our rights only; even that alone, were comfortable, compared with the sufferance of such "polished rhetorical effort" in our behalf.

Poor She.

Every little while somebody breaks out with a scold because women do not marry. Continually women are remanded to the home circle and the cradle side, when, forsooth, she has no home circle, and having no husband, wisely refrains from cradles. That she is helpless and guiltless in the matter seems not to be considered at all. But there is ample testimony that, as usual, the man is to blame in the matter. For illustration, one George Northedge, a Chicago carpenter who recently fell heir to a few thousands, declared to a newspaper reporter:

All the old maids and widows in the country are after me. Then he dropped about a bushel of letters on a table, everyone of which was from some woman desirous of marrying him. I don't know how much longer I can endure this. If it is kept up I shall have to get out of the country.

This may be smilable at first reading, but really it is pathetic. It affords a casual glimpse of poor woman's condition. If she become "strong-minded" and learn how to take care of herself, and demand equal rights in the struggle, she is told "men will not admire her," and she may as well expect to live the rest of her life in misery and die in disgrace. She gets scolded because she doesn't "ornament a home," and gets laughed at if she asks for a husband. What's she to do?

A Plucky Woman.

It seems a long time since the Hastings collision on the N. Y. Central, but it is painfully remembered by some of the victims. Mrs. H. R. Baldwin, of New York, in a hospital in that city was one of the frightfully wounded. If she recovers, as it is believed she may, she will be without arms and ears, while the entire top of her head will be new, the grafted skin having been taken from her husband's arms. Her eyelids are burned away, but the sight is all right. She has suffered three amputations of one arm. She could not take ether and has borne all the intense suffering in a state of perfect consciousness. The story of the long weeks is a pathetic one, and if she recovers it will be a wonderful testimonial to modern medical skill, as well as tribute to a woman's pluck and endurance and a husband's devotion.

New York newspapers are printing columns about "saving young women" by building a reformatory for them. The same papers declare that it is scarcely a safe or proper thing for a young woman who cares for her reputation to promenade Broadway alone, even in day time, there are so many places where dudes and loafers congregate. Looks as if something were needed in Gotham to save young women from the reformatory they are going to build for them, and, incidentally look after the dudes and loafers. They are American citizens; perhaps they are worth saving.

IN THE LIBRARY.

How the commonest blessings of life become precious and beautiful, once we are dispossessed of them. Whoever, in a prayer, silent or uttered, remembered to thank the Lord for "the good green grass?" Gen. Williams, of Michigan, of army fame in the late rebellion, came near it when, during the war, he rode up from the hot and dusty south, worn and tired, with his troopers, and came in sight of a Virginia clover field. He dismounted, sprang over the fence and laid his cheek to the dewy honeyed blossoms and said "Thank God for this dear sight once more." Our Polly Peppergrass, who removed a couple of years ago from the green fields of Nebraska to the sands of San Bernardino county, southern California, utters a like sentiment in a pretty little poem written for the Youth's Companion. It is heartsome enough to quote entire:

O good green grass, the gardens here
Are gay with roses all the year,
And hedged with green where'er we pass;
But still we miss your modest grace;
And find there's none to fill your place,
O good green grass!

The heliotropes and fuschias, too,
Thrive out of doors the winter through,
And other wonders come to pass;
And yet we'd sometimes like to see
A meadow, rippling to the knee,
O good green grass!

December days forget to sting;
They gild the oranges they bring;
The berries redden while they pass;
The wind is kind; the sun is warm;
How can you choose the cold and storm,
O good green grass!

New friends in every land we find;
But dear are those we leave behind,
And from our hearts they ne'er shall pass;
Not all these wonders, rich and new,
Can keep our loving thoughts from you,
O good green grass!
BARBARA.

A member of the Household asks the Bee to print Laureate Lord Tennyson's poem on the death of Prince Albert Victor. Here it is:

The bridal garland falls upon the bier;
The shadow of a crown that o'er him hung
Has vanished in the shadow cast by death;
So princely, tender, truthful, reverent, pure.
Mourn! That a world-wide empire mourns with you.
That all the thrones are clouded by your loss,
Were tender solace. Yet be comforted;
For if this earth be ruled by perfect love,
Then, after his brief range of blameless days,
The toll of funeral in an angel ear
Sounds happier than the merriest marriage bell.
The face of death is toward the sun of life,
His shadow darkens earth; his truer name
Is "Onward"; no discordance in the roll
And march of that eternal harmony
Whereto the worlds beat time, tho' faintly heard,
Until the great hereafter mourn in hope.

It has been sharply criticised, but, really, could one do much better writing perfunctory verse? The Toronto Empire, a loyal sheet, made us smile by saying "it was pretty, truthful, and appropriate to the occasion." So good a critic as R. H. Stoddard comes to its defense and says, "one trouble is, we remember as we read, that Tennyson is 83 years old." The poverty of material considered, he did a pretty good piece of work.

I am not an admirer, generally, of Ella Wheeler Wilcox and her poetry. Her scarlet book was such as no unwedded woman who cared for a reputation for womanly virtue and honor could ever have given to the public. It was demoralizing to a degree, and many a thoughtful mother took pains to keep it out of the way of her young daughters. She has the poetic gift, and pity was to see it prostrated to such uses. It has been explained that she made this bold stroke to call attention, and that end attained, she was ready to drop her mask or assume it again, whichever it may be. In spite of this prejudice, if such it is, I have pasted her "Sun Shadows" in my scrap book as one of the most perfect bits of verse that has been set afloat in many a day:

There never was success so nobly gained,
Or victory so free from earthly dross,
But, in the winning, someone had been pained
And someone suffered loss.
There never was so wisely planned a fete,
Or festal throng with hearts on pleasure bent,
But some neglected one outside the gate
Wept tears of discontent.
There never was a bridal morning, fair
With Hope's blue skies and Love's unclouded sun
For two fond hearts, that did not bring despair
To some sad other one.
GLADIOLUS.

In Celia Logan's letter to the Canton News-Democrat is a queer divulgence concerning the editing of magazines. Mrs. Logan was assistant editor of Belford's at one time and tells how the editor (Col. Piatt) wanted a poem to fill space and selected one, "not because it was more meritorious than others but because it was of the required length." Here is a hint for poets: the space to be filled out is usually not a page or two.

London Truth tells bad stories of London ladies. It says:

"I am assured by one of the fair sex that it is the commonest thing in the world for well-bred women to rob one another. Gloves, scraps of lace, fans, handkerchiefs, are regarded as common property, and it is never considered quite safe to leave purses or stray money about in bed-rooms or boudoirs to which 'dear friends' have access."

Will some well-bred woman in America society please tell us Bees if such reprehensible lawlessness obtains with us?

WANTS AND NEEDS OF WOMEN

Varied According to Birth, Education and Circumstances.

The wants and needs of women generally are, to my mind, as dissimilar as women themselves. The wants and needs of one woman would not probably be the wants and needs of her neighbor, or any other woman of her acquaintance.

In this day and age of quickly accumulating fortunes, I have in my mind a woman, who, in her youth, had not the advantages of even a common school education, but after several years of married life, the husband, through energy and a strict eye to business transactions, has reached that point in wealth where the family seem to be immoderately lavish in spending money. Mrs. A——, (I will call her), has money to buy all all the necessaries, comforts and luxuries that go to make life pleasant and enjoyable; but she has only a very limited education. Indeed her education is not sufficient to aid her in mingling with ease and composure in the society of other women of corresponding circumstances. Evidently she realizes that education is one of her special needs.

Again, Mrs. B—— has both money and education to enable her to shine in the world of fashion, and is a willing subject to all her caprices, regardless of the numerous needs of her sister women, which she might, with spiritual blessings to herself, alleviate in many ways, could she be impressed with the greatness of the work of charities and reforms that are waiting to be promoted to the highest and best good of all. And so on, I might portray down through the different grades of society and wealth to the most humble and lowly, and women's wants would be different.

The two above mentioned are the counterpart of women to be found in almost any town or community, and yet with all their wealth they have needs. The first needs education; the last needs more education. I think the wants and needs of women are multitudinous, but I am almost inclined to venture dissent, with "Aunt Hepzibah," about "time, being what women need most, for women have all the time there is, and quoting "P. P." there is no way to lengthen the hours of daylight, or the seasons of bud and blossom; harvest and rest," and if hundreds of women in the world had any more time to work, they would soon be completely worn out, and in their graves. "Waste not, want not" is a good old adage, but I can think of another that will very satisfactorily read backward, as well as forward. It is, "time is money," so also, money is time, therefore if many of us had more money we might have more leisure; time to "read the good book," or "take the trip for health sake," or "join the club of bright women, where they know they can do good and get good." One thing I think many women need in life is to have aims and purposes. Some people live out their whole existence without a purpose or aim in life to incite or stimulate their actions.

It is an old proverb that, "he who aims at the sun, will not reach it, to be sure," but his arrow will fly higher, then, if he aims at an object on a level with himself. It has also been truly said that, as a general rule, "we may be whatever we resolve to be." Women need to decide early in life, what position they desire to occupy relative to standard worth. Then put forth their best efforts to attain that position, keeping in mind the oft-quoted maxim that, 'Where there is a will, there is a way." They should be on the alert, at all times, to catch the golden opportunities as they are flitting by, and not only wait for the passing opportunity but strike the iron that will bring it.

We cannot, I believe, set our mark for ourselves too high, but if it is to be effective in making us better women it must remain within the range of our own peculiar possibilities. We need to have a clear perception of what the highest standard demands of us now, just as we are, rather than a beautiful theory of what we should do and be, under entirely different conditions.

If we untertake anything, we should do it with resolution and courage; and it is, I think, our privilege, our right, and our duty to our God and mankind: to our children and loved ones to cultivate our talents to their highest endowments. Then we will be, in a manner, ready to take advantage of some of the golden opportunities that are opening up every day, to the interest and welfare of intelligent women throughout the land.

SCHOOL GIRLS' BLUES.

The rain on the pane beat a long tattoo;
Over Euclid and Latin we lingered, blue.
Some of us homesick, some of us cross,
Voting the tasks of the evening, loss;
Wishing ourselves away from school,
With its wearisome drudging along by rule.
When suddenly Madge began to play
The jolliest jig for a rainy day.
Then Grace whirled Marian over the floor;
Gladys and Fan and a dozen more,
The maddest, merriest set of girls,
Went waltzing and spinning in giddy whirls.
Till the blood in our veins was all aglow,
Our cheeks were rosy as to and fro,
Dancing like feathers our hearts grew light,
And the world once more was blithe and bright.

A Noted Ohio Village.

In a recent issue of the Bee it was related that T. A. Edison, the electrician, was born at Alva, Ohio. A connection of the family thought the statement should be denied, as the history of his life records that he was born at Milan, Ohio, in 1847. There are many Toledoans who can vouch for the truth of the story. Science cares not for the distinguishment of a country village as the birthplace of so great a genius, only to apply his discoveries, by adapting the chained electric current for practical purposes. But the people of that little town are not willing to lose any distinction that rightfully belongs to it. A descriptive poem in the Milan Advertiser (1890) begins:

A country village, old Milan, you know,
Is situated on a beautiful plateau;
In form a peninsula, 'mid picturesque hills,
In the valley meandering, gurgling rills;
Joyfully dancing over pebbly bed,
Till by the Huron they're gently led.

Another poem in the same paper, entitled "Cousin and I" (the cousin is a niece of Edison) has the following lines:

In the years that come to Cousin and I
Clouds oft obscure our summer sky
But we visit the place where the Huron flows,
Where hill and glen with sunlight glows;
To loiter again by the winding stream
And idly muse o'er its glint and gleam;
And to follow once more with laugh and jest
The wooded paths we loved the best;
Silent we listened to the waters flow,
Gathering the violets nestling low.

The history of Milan (when it was a grain market for a vast extent of country, the old canal carrying the grain to the navigable portion of the river, thence to Huron, a fine lake harbor,) has been written by able pens. Where are the sons and daughters who passed out from the old academy and found homes and work far distant from the chime of "That Old Academy Bell." "I love it, I love it, and who shall dare to chide me for lingering with tenderness there?" were some words which were sung at parting. The old brick walls resounded again and again with the ringing voices. Where are those voices now? "and echo answers where."

ZENOBIA.
Sequoit Hut.

The Poultry House.

Let me tell Minus X that if he got from 50 to 90 eggs a day from 100 hens, he would better build his new poultry house on the plan of the old one. Last year we got, from 25 laying hens, over 1,700 eggs and hatched over 200 chickens. We fed them mostly on wheat, kept them in a double board coop (hollow wall, lined with tarred paper). This made it sufficiently warm and helped to keep out insects. We keep the poultry house clean, give plenty of water and bone dust. The average of "well-bred" hens is about 130 eggs a year, and it is my idea if you crowd them it will result in "spurts" which will be "evened up" later on.

N.

Zenobia comes in to say that her Zophai is drafting a poultry house for Minus X, of which more hereafter.

Without doubt the chicken business will receive a great impetus during the world's fair. Chicago will have to draw on all reserves for food for her throngs and they will all eat, in transit.

A very true story of a very bad boy is this: He was a little fellow, could not talk plain, was observing, imitative, and shrewd beyond his years. His mother gave him permission to go and make a little visit at a neighbor's one day. Very soon he came back and said the lady sent him home. He was so wounded in his feelings she allowed him to go to a second neighbor's and he was at her elbow again in a few minutes with the same complaint. The mother went to the lady of the house where her little son paid his last call, and inquired what was the matter with Freddie? How did he misbehave? The hesitating reply was, "he uses such rough language. I supposed he has picked it up without your knowledge." Later, mother called her child to her and asked him about it.

"How did you find out?" was the first question.

"A little bird told me," said the mamma.

"I know," was the quick rejoinder, in which his previous caution was forgotten, "It was one of them d—d sparrows."

Clothiers and Furnishers (a trade journal) has an alleged funny squib like this:

Mrs. Bingo—What are you going to wear at the sociable to-night, my dear?

Bingo (frantically from the depths of his wardrobe)—From present indications, I shall go in a silk hat and a pair of rubber boots.

Now the ordinary man, it is well known, has his business suit, and his "other" suit that he wears to sociables and things, and no wife asks her husband "what you going to wear?" The wife knows what he will wear.

We never need the sun so much
As when it has gone down;
Nor know the bliss that's in a kiss
'Til we have felt a frown.

The empty arms when loved ones part,
From being idle, ache;
We never know we've got a heart
'Til it begins to break.

The gentleness and loveliness of women do not cause us to forget that she can inspire man to deeds of greatness and heroism; that as wife she often makes man's career nobler and grander, and that as mother she builds and fashions in her sons the strong pillars of a state.—Cleveland, at Ann Arbor.

Why didn't he say "sons and daughters?"

A recent instance of man's inhumanity to woman is related in Maine. After she had milked the cows, and strained the milk into thirteen stone crocks, carried the crocks down into the cellar, skimmed the cream, washed the crocks and put them on the fence palings to dry, heated skim milk for the calves and carried it to the barn for them, got the cream ready for churning, put her husband's supper on the table, and then hurried to take the crying baby, the farmer's wife said that she was tired and asked her husband to buy her a portable creamery, in order to lighten her labor. The farmer replied he couldn't afford it, and the next day he went to town and bought a riding plough, paying for it with the butter money.

There's a certain slant of light
On winter afternoons
That oppresses, like the weight
Of old cathedral tunes.

When it comes the landscape listens,
Shadows hold their breath;
When it goes 'tis like the distance
On the look of death.
—Emily Dickinson.

Piano-tuning, which has heretofore been classed with men's work, is going on the other list. Even conservative Philadelphia reports a dozen women piano tuners.

Robe dresses are to be made of chambrey this spring. Dark blue chambrey a deep flounce of white embroidery, trimmed with dark blue and white ribbons, makes a dainty morning gown.

Now those who disposed of their robe chambreys as old-fashioned will wish they hadn't. Keep most anything that is keepable and it will "come in" again in due time.

There's never a rose in all the world
But makes some green spray sweeter;
There's never a wind in all the sky,
But makes some bird wing fleeter;
There's never a star but brings to heaven
Some silver radiance tender;
And never a rosy cloud but helps
To crown the sunset splendor!
No robin but may thrill some heart
His dawnlight gladness voicing;
God gives us all some small sweet way
To set the world rejoicing.

There is no reason why the average woman should not add ten-fold to her enjoyment of life and out-of-door living by cultivating the noble art of walking.—Ex.

Yes, there is a reason, a great big one: She is too silly-proud to wear a walking shoe, and she cannot enjoy and cultivate the noble art in any other.

Lemons.

Here are some things lemons are good for: A morning drink of lemon juice in water, with a little sugar if you like, will cure dyspepsia and billiousness. Lemon juice rubbed into the scalp will stop the hair from falling out. Lemon juice in milk, or in glycerine, is an excellent lotion to keep the skin soft and smooth. Sliced lemons bound on aching temples will speedily ease the pain. Lemon will take the poison out of a bee sting, will cure a corn, and is most palatable sliced in "Russian tea (without sugar).

The number of recent social tragedies that had their beginning in a newspaper advertisement, soliciting correspondence, between young women and young men, with a view to matrimony, ought to serve as useful moral lessons, but there is danger that they will not be heeded. The number of fools of both sexes in this world does not materially diminish with the passing years.

This is clipped from the Boston Globe, and should be well circulated. Can not reckless, fun-loving girls be warned by it? Let me tell you, my unsuspicious ones, it is bad enough so far as your young men acquaintances are concerned, in too many cases. Could you know the thoughts and deeds of their daily lives, the haunts they visit and the language they use—it would be bad enough and sad enough. There's a deal of uncertainty at best, but you can put it down for sure that the fellow who goes fishing with an advertisement for bait is a low-down scamp and likely to catch—a sucker.

CROUPY SOUNDS

At night, from baby's crib, are distracting to parents who are at a loss for a medicine equal to the emergency. Not so with those who have Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. A dose of this medicine affords certain and speedy relief. To cure colds, coughs, sore throat, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, and the various disorders of the breathing apparatus, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has no equal. It soothes the inflamed tissue, promotes expectoration, and induces repose. Cap. U. Carley, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, to which complaint my children were subject."

Biographical Sketches of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal.

An Ideal American Drama—The Private Secretary—Niobe—Paul Kauvar—Dramatic Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, who will appear at Wheeler's to-night, have a conspicuous rank in the dramatic profession in London. For more than ten years they have played almost continuously (until their American tours) in the St. James and Court theaters, two of the ultra fashionable places of amusement in that city, but long before that Mrs. Kendal, then Madge Robertson, delighted theater goers. She is essentially a child of the stage, for her father, her grandfather and her great-grandfather were actors, and her brother, 20 years older than she, was a famous dramatist, the author of Ours, Caste and other well known plays.

Early in life Madge Robertson started in the race for fame in the Bristol theater, and subsequently she gained that experience in the English provinces. There, in the lighter roles at Haymarket and Gaiety theaters, her ability was recognized. In such works as As You Like It and in The Palace of Truth she made her reputation. When W. S. Gilbert produced his "Pygmalion and Galatea Mrs. Kendal was the central figure as Galatea. The traits in her frank, natural style which suggests the pure-hearted, artless ingenue, were displayed to the best advantage.

Mr. Kendal is conspicuous among the players of England. At the age of 18 he joined the company of the Soho theater in London, which then included Ellen Terry, David James and Charles Wyndham among its members. That was in 1861. The following year he went into the provinces, the training school of some of the best English actors. He had the advantage of acting with such artists as Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean, Helen Faucit, and Dion Boucicault. Toward the end of 1866 he made his appearance at the Haymarket and created a favorable impression. His impersonations of Orlando, Pygmalion and other characters gave him a footing in London. During the last ten years both he and Mrs. Kendal have made the St. James theater the home of English comedy.

They will present Pinero's adaptation of Ohnet's play, The Ironmaster, which is recognized as an undeniably strong melodrama, with theatrical situations in each of its four acts. It differs from the majority of French plays in having rather a wholesome moral.

An American Drama.

As an instance of how small suggestions, trivial enough in themselves, sometimes influence the author whose keen judgment accepts them as indications of a change of public taste or thought, Mr. Wm. Gillette, the dramatist, tells of an incident which first turned his mind in the direction of an American drama, resulting in the production of the successful play, "Held by the Enemy."

The author some years ago, chanced to be visiting in Frederick, Maryland, on Decoration day. The veterans of both the federal and confederate armies had made arrangements to strew flowers on the graves of their fallen comrades on the same day, the cemetery in which the northern men's graves were decorated being in Maryland, and those of the southerners just beyond the border line, in Virginia. Gillette went to attend the ceremonies at the Union cemetery. As the salute was fired over the grave there came the sound of firing from the confederate cemetery.

The orator of the occasion noted this fact and suggested that it would be a noble, humane and gracious act for the Union soldiers to march to the confederate cemetery and decorate the resting places of the dead of the "lost cause." The crowd needed no persuasion, and at once the march began. Word was sent to the confederate veterans of this purpose, and when the Union men arrived and were received through an open column of southern soldiers the scene was one of the most tender and touching that the young author had ever witnessed.

This incident, Gillette says, convinced him that the time had come when the people of both the north and south would be willing and glad to receive a play founded on the civil war, providing its plot should not be drawn by a hand influenced by sectional prejudice, and a few years later he produced "Held by the Enemy," which has been as enthusiastically welcomed in the south as in the north. It will be presented at the People's theater all of next week.

Private Secretary.

The Private Secretary, by Wm. Gillette, will be presented at Wheeler's Monday night, by a good company under the direction of Edwin Travers. The New Orleans Critic speaks of the performance as follows:

"The first legitimate performances of the season are those of the Private Secretary, now being given at the People's theater. It is refreshing to turn from the coarse, knock-about horse play and dramatic absurdities with which the stage abounds, at present, to a clean-cut, refined and highly artistic production of the legitimate dramatic school, such as the Private Secretary. Mr. Travers' company is a first-class one in every respect, each one seems especially fitted for the part assigned him or her, and in not trying to overdo, each helps the other to make a great success of the whole."

Niobe.

Abbott & Teal's company will appear at Wheeler's Thursday evening in that bright comedy, Niobe. The story of the play is as follows:

Mr. Dunn is a married man, very much married, not only to his wife, but to her sisters, Helen and Hattie, and her brother Corney. Helen is a lady in whose presence the thermometer falls below freezing point; Hattie is a bright, breezy, delightful maiden, and Corney is a young man who never forgets himself, and never remembers anybody else.

Dunn is the president of an insurance company, which has just been entrusted with the care of a celebrated art treasure. "Niobe;" a fac simile of the statue of the wife of "Amphion," king of Thebes, and in fact she turns out to be the real article. In the absence of the family at the theater, the statue, through the agency of electricity accidentally applied, comes to life and Peter Dunn is obliged to face a double responsibility. The statue insured in his office for $20,000 is no more, and a young female is present in the Dunn abode without apparent excuse.

Fortunately for Peter, there is a new governess expected to undertake the education of the Dunn's children, and the worried insurance man passes "Niobe" off to his family in that capacity. A tremendous amount of fun is attracted from the peculiarity of the situation. "Niobe" being imbued with the ideas of 3,000 B. C., attempts to apply them to the year of grace, 1891.

"Niobe" betrays lamentable ignorance in the role of governess, and on each fresh disaster, clings to Peter with such evident affection that Dunn's wife talks divorce and the sister-in-law is even more frigid than usual. The complications crowd each other and the fun gets faster and faster till the owner (Tompkins) of the statue calls to take it away. Then Peter is compelled to own up to the truth, which seemed so absurd, and to his surprise is believed by "Tompkins," who relates the legend in all seriousness. He takes "Niobe" away to become his wife; she, contrary to expectation, remaining in the flesh and not performing the stereotyped feat of re-petrefaction.

There is a sub-plot connected with Corney Griffin's past and present love affairs, but even he is made happy in conclusion.

Paul Kauvar.

Steele Mackaye's picturesque and romantic drama, Paul Kauvar, which ran over one hundred nights at the Standard theater, New York, is a serious attempt, by a skilled American dramatist, to represent in action great themes, high motives and the conduct of heroic men and women swayed by the loftiest purposes, and surrounded by the terrible circumstances of civil revolution. The play is built on the French method, and has many great and striking pictures, which do not interrupt but rather intensify the action. It presents in a clear and unmistakable manner the distinction between liberty and license, and patriotism and mob violence, and it employs love, hatred, selfishness and ambition as the passions which sway and animate its leading personages. The action takes place in Paris and La Vendee, during the French revolution, and the story ends with a mob scene, showing the rescue of the heroine, in which are employed over one hundred trained subordinates.

It will be presented at Wheeler's next Friday and Saturday evenings.

Dramatic Notes.

W. S. Gilbert has gone to Egypt for material to be used in a new opera.

Alabama will probably be tried in several European capitals in the summer.

A first-class opera house is to be erected at Helena, Mont., by a syndicate of capitalists.

Margaret Mather is seeking a legal separation from Edward Haberkorn, the orchestra leader with whom she fell in love and married a few years ago.

Victorien Sardou is writing a novel based on his play, Thermidor, which was suppressed in Paris. He is bound to preach his little sermon in one form or another.

Mme. Tessandier, who fills the place once occupied by Bernhardt in the Comedie Francaise, was a laborer's daughter, meanly reared in the slums of Bordeaux.

It is said that Edwin Booth will make a ten weeks' tour next season, supported by Minna Gale and her present company. At the expiration of the engagement Miss Gale will continue as before.

"Spike" Hennessey, the reformed burglar of the Stowaway company, recently engaged a valet. Mark Lynch, the leading man of the company, was not to be outdone and immediately employed a dresser.

Plays in Paris generally begin at 8 o'clock and never finish until midnight. If they were over earlier the audience would not think they had received their money's worth of bad air and good acting.

It is said that George Rignold, who created such a furor throughout the country some sixteen years ago as Henry V. is now a wealthy actor-manager in Australia, and is a good friend of all visiting Americans.

A lady, Signora Teresa Guidi, has composed a new opera, which has been produced with success at the Fenice theater at Venice. The music is said to be extremely bright and original. The work is entitled "Suzinetta."

In future the European owners propose to make the American managers pay royalties for operas produced. A test case will soon be brought into courts a bout Faust and Carmen both of which belongs to Chouders & Son of Paris.

Mr. Willard is but 38 years old, though people who see him for the first time as Cyrus Blenkarn in The Middleman, imagine him at least 50. He uses neither wig nor beard to produce the effect of age. It is done by facial expression and a few touches of make-up.

A few weeks ago Marie Weinright casually announced that she wanted an American play for next season, and would be glad to consider any sent to her. Up to date she has received 64 manuscripts and more are coming. The American dramatist is numerous even if he is oppressed and neglected.

New York will have six stock companies next season: Daly's, Palmer's, the Casino, Daniel Frohman's, Charles Frohman'sand Proctor's. New York is in luck, for the stock system is the only one admitting of perfect attention to details and thoroughly well-balanced and artistic productions.

And now some of the New York swells will imitate the English customs of giving grand operas in their homes with all the accessories of the stage. Two "leaders of fashion" have already hired the Abbey-Grau company and orchestra. It comes high, but they must have it.

The Rev. E. Walpole Warren, of the Church of the Holy Trinity, New York, made an onslaught on the stage from his pulpit some time ago. His father's novel, "Ten Thousand a Year," has been dramatized and is soon to be produced by Richard Mansfield, and people are wondering what the Reverend Warren will do about it.

A play recently produced in London is called The Gray Mare. Rose Coghlan has a play by that title, and two or three other managers in this country say the title belongs to them and threaten to indulge in legal fights. As a matter of fact, a piece called A Gray Mare was published by French & Sons many years ago and is still being played occasionally by amateurs.

Some aspirant as yet not known, has won a prize of $200, offered by the N. Y. Herald for the best one-act play sent in. A. M. Palmer, Daniel Frohman and other New York managers acting as judges. The play is entitled Hearts and Daniel Frohman will buy and produce it on the boards. One happy heart, at least when the verdict is known. Five hundred and ninety-eight plays were submitted.

FACTS FROM FINDLAY.

The New Road Looking After Right of Way.

The T., C. & C. Making Rapid Strides Toward Columbus—Dr. Herrington's Case.

Findlay, O., Feb. 27.—(Special)—Dr. R. Herrington, a prominent citizen of ...wson, this county, was arrested and taken to Tiffin this week on the serious charge of blackmail preferred by the landlord of the Commercial hotel of that city. The grand jury failed to find any case for an indictment. The trouble grew out of the settlement of a debt.

Working Eastward.

J. A. Andrews is at work securing right of way through Marion and Biglick townships for the extension eastward of the new trunk line, the Findlay, Ft. Wayne & Western railroad, to Greenwich, Huron county. Farmers and land owners generally are anxious for the road and in many cases are granting the right of way.

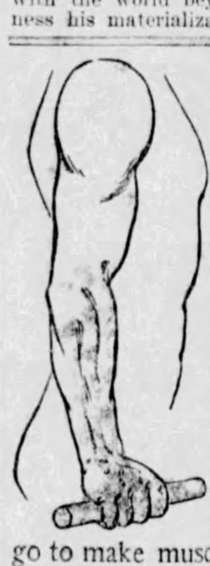
Through to Columbus.

It is said the T., C. & C. company have secured all the right of way from its present terminus at Ridgeway to Marysville, Union county. The corps of engineers will be put to work at once running the grade lines. It is thought the company expect to reach Columbus this year. This will give Toledo an additional competing line to the capital city.

OLD CRAFT.

A recent report of casualties to shipping shows some remarkable facts in regard to the great age of some craft still in active service. Thirty-nine sailing vessels mentioned in the report are between 50 and 60 years old, 18 between 60 and 70 years, 30 between 70 and 100, while six have been afloat during a century. This is, of course, only a part of the list of ancient craft still in service, and the vessels referred to are seagoing craft, and not barges or river boats. It is, however, probable that there is exceedingly little of the original structure left in the old ships. Constant repairing and refitting have almost rebuilt them, but while one plank of the original remains the vessel retains its identity.

James Riley, a farmer living near Kalamazoo, claims to be in communication with the world beyond and crowds witness his materialization.



That Grip! Have you had it? Then—have you still got it? If you have had La Grippe, you are probably no exception to the general rule; you have probably lost your old time vigorous grip. You need building up. You must eat hearty and well, and your food must be properly digested and go to make muscle and bone. You need an invigorant. Take the genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Extract; it will do all that you need. Your health, your strength will return in an incredibly short space of time. Try it to-day. Your druggist has it. The genuine has the signature of "Johann Hoff" on the neck of the bottle. Eisner & Mendelson Co N. Y., Sole Agents.

Echoed Around The World.

The Cry All The World Must Heed.

"Give me liberty or death!" cried the statesman.

Freedom is a glorious thing, but there is one greater gift—Health.

"GIVE ME HEALTH—FREEDOM FROM DISEASE, or give me death!" is the cry of millions of sufferers, who drag out lives of misery, slaves to their nerves, harassed by nervous weakness and exhausted powers, with tired brains, unstrung and shattered nerves, dizzy, dull-headed, sleepless, worried, anxious, with strange feelings and sensations, malaria, and stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys disordered. Especially do our people suffer during the Spring months, owing to the great changes going on both in nature and our bodies at this season, when all diseases are aggravated and made worse.

Do not be a slave to disease longer, for a liberator is at hand to relieve you from its galling thraldom. Use Dr. Greene's Nervura the great Conqueror of Disease, the strengthener of the nerves, invigorator of the blood, vitalizer of brain and body, and you will be restored to perfect health. Use it this Spring. Purely vegetable and harmless. Druggists, $1.

A TRUMPET-BLAST OF HOPE.

"I was broken down with nervous and physical prostration. I WISH I COULD SHOUT LOUD ENOUGH SO THAT ALL THE WORLD COULD HEAR, AND TELL THEM THE GOOD DR. GREENE'S NERVURA HAS DONE FOR ME. It has made me from a WEAK, TREMBLING, NERVOUS, IRRITABLE man to one who feels he is on the HIGHWAY TO LONG YEARS OF HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

ANDREW H. OLNEY,
